TWO RARE VOLUMES OF BIBLE FOUND AT CHICAGO UNIVERSITY

After Nearly Forty Years' Disappearance Portions of the "Complutentian Polyglot" Are Identified.

DATE BACK TO 1514

Edition Was Published Only 70 Years After Invention of Printing and Is First Version in Hebrew by Christian

CHICAGO—Two volumes of a rare edition of the Bible have appeared in the library of the University of Chicago, after having been lost nearly 40 years.

The books, which are the first and fifth volumes of the "Complutentian Polyglot" containing the Pentateuch and the New Testament, were part of the collection of the American Bible Union, at that time the greatest collection of bibles in this country.

When the union dissolved in 1872 the collection was purchased for the Baptist Theological Seminary, of Morgan Park, Ill., which institution later became absorbed by the University of Chicago.

When the collection was shipped West, Dr. Conant of New York, the collector, retained several volumes to enable him to complete some work he was then doing, and it has always been supposed that the two missing volumes from this set were among those retained.

They appeared a few days ago, however, on the librarian's desk, and no explanation is forthcoming. It is thought that years ago they were put among the uncatalogued books by some one who did not know their value, and that they have been brought out just as unknowingly by some worker on the cataloging force.

Dr. E. J. Goodspeed of the theological department was the first to notice them and he recognized them at once as the long lost volumes. The news spread rapidly through the department, attended by as much jubilation as might be enjoyed by a school of astronomers upon the discovery of a new planet.

The Complutentian Polyglot, arranged by Cardinal Ximines in Complumentia (Alcala de Hanares), Spain, in 1514 to 1517, was the first Polyglot Bible ever printed, and the first Hebrew Bible ever printed by a Christian.

It was published only 70 years after the invention of printing and is very crude.

The text is written in parallel columns, Hebrew, Latin and Greek. The books are bound in red calf and are well preserved.

The value of the set is over $600, but there are very few in existence.

FIX MERCHANTS WEEK IN MALDEN FOR EARLY MAY

A "Merchants Week" for Malden is unanimously favored by a special committee of the Malden Board of Trade, the observance to be the first week in May.

There is to be one day set apart for a civic parade, another for a reception to former residents who will be urged to visit the city, another to the entertainment of guests who may be considering making Malden their home or the home of industries in which they are interested. There are to be athletic events and the city will be specially decorated.

The committee to have charge is made up of R. C. Clifford, Charles G. Warren, Walter S. Hopkins, Fred N. Joslin and William J. Caldwell.

This committee has appointed several subcommittees as follows: Executive, P. C. Clifford, Charles T. Hall, Frank R. Sircum, A. S. Ross, Eugene A. Perry and Arthur Lee; transportation, William W. Trafton, A. F. Senter, W. M. Healy, G. M. Edgett and E. E. Neal; finance, Edwin Troland, O. P. Doonan, Alexander Kerr, Col. E. E. Locke, William Niedner, Philip V. Mingo and W. A. Tucker; entertainment, P. J. McShane, G. D. Campbell, F. R. Kaulback, J. J. Keaney, J. Richmond Dean, W. S. Kaulback and F. A. Connor; illuminating, J. B. Barrett, J. T. Day, Carl P. Cubberly, George E. Bliss, W. P. Sheldon and H. C. Lord; decorating, C. Morris Tredick, J. J. Kelley, William Cox, Alonzo A. West, George N. Ware, J. J. Duggan and A. F. Crocker.

The transportation committee is working to secure reduced excursion rates to the city during the week.

NEW ENGLAND MAKES FOUR BIDS

Of 156 bidders on a $1,000,000 supply order for the United States army in the Philippines but four New England bids were received and those from Massachusetts concerns. They are F. W. Bird & Son, East Walpole; Boston & Lockport Block Company, East Boston; Boston Woven Hose & Rubber Company and Chelsea Clock Company, 16 State street, Boston.

FORMER SOUTHERN GOVERNOR SPEAKS HERE IN AID OF NEGRO

Elevating the negro race is the aim of the national religious training school for the colored race at Durham, N. C., of which James E. Shepard is president.

R. B. Glenn, former Governor of North Carolina, and Peter C. Pritchard, circuit court judge, asked financial support for the work of this school today at the Park street church. Their subject was "The Hope of the New South."

Former Governor Glenn said in part:

"The reason that the colored people have not succeeded in North Carolina or any other state is that they have had incompetent teachers. They need teachers who are properly instructed to help them to learn to work with the hands as well as the mind. I am in no way criticizing the large institutions for colored people, which have done such splendid work in the South. I am deploring that there are not more such.'

"At our school at Durham we have been given 30 acres of land and $45,000 in money, but now we have 139,000 bricks lying idle because we lack sufficient funds to make them into buildings. Thousands of boys and girls are clamoring for admission, and we only have facilities for educating 100.

"The first object is to train the hands; to teach the colored man and woman that no matter how mean the work may be it is respectable; that instead of being a badge of disgrace it is a badge of honor. In that way the country will, in the future, have better farmers, better carpenters, better men and women in every walk of life.

Mr. Glenn denied that he had accused New Englanders of being stingy, and said that he had come to New England because he knew that the reverse was true; that through the coton industry there was a bond of sympathy between North Carolina and Masachusetts. He will speak in South Congregational church at the corner of Exeter and Newbury streets tonight.

MORE OPPOSITION TO MANN MEDICAL BILL BEFORE COMMITTEE

L. Ert Slack of Indiana and Others Analyze Measure in Addresses Against Its Approval and Report.

INTEREST IS KEEN

WASHINGTON—At the continuation today of the hearing before the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce on the Mann medical bill, which extends the powers of the public health and marine hospital service, L. Ert Slack of Franklin, Ind., was heard in opposition to the measure.

Mr. Slack is one of the leading Indiana members of the League for Medical Freedom. His address, which lasted an hour, was listened to with marked attention by the committee members. Their interest was frequently manifested by interruptions and the questions showed a desire for full information

Mr. Slack favors state and municipal control of all public health agencies affecting the individual citizen directly, and thinks the federal government has already gone too far in the direction of invading this control. He said that the Mann bill could not become a law without having the federal government interfere with the political subdivisions just mentioned, usurp their power and duplicate their work.

There was no necessity, he pointed out, for an enabling act, such as the Mann bill. Under that bill the federal government would presume to study and investigate the sovereign citizen, he said, invade his home, take charge of his family and in general trespass on all his inalienable rights. If this was not the effect of legislation asked for, continued Mr. Slack, how could the provisions of the bill be carried out?

Mr. Slack said that under the Mann bill the federal government would virtually embark in the study of medicine.

Mr. Slack, speaking of the stream pollution feature of the measure, said that stream pollution and sewerage were questions for sanitary engineers. They were economic and not medical questions, and the physicians should have nothing to do with them for they know little about them.

Mr. Slack read from the congressional record part of a speech made in Congress by Representative Mann, author of the present bill, in 1902, when similar legislation was pending. Mr. Mann then opposed the legislation on the same grounds taken by Mr. Slack.

The second speaker was Porter F. Cope of Philadelphia, secretary of the Anti-Vaccination Society of the United States. He strongly opposed the bill. A paper in opposition was submitted from Dr. Lewis P. Crutcher of Kansas City, one of the vice-presidents of the League for Medical Freedom in Missouri.

Dr. G. Lloyd Magruder of this city outlined the history of the movement to get health legislation in Congress. He favored the publication of health bulletins as proposed in the Mann bill.

Dr. Magruder said, in reply to questions, that he was speaking for the so-called regular school of physicians only. He thought they should have a monopoly of any public health agencies established by Congress. It was clear from what Dr. Magruder said that he and his associates were expected under the Mann bill to install his school of physicians in places of undisputed authority, no other schools to be recognized.

Col. Fred Bangs of Chicago was the next speaker. He represents the League for Medical Freedom in Illinois, and is opposed to the Mann bill.

OREGON FOR INCOME TAX.

SALEM, Ore.—Following the lead of the House the state Senate has ratified the proposed constitutional amendment permitting the levying of a federal income tax.

MALDEN NAMES COMMITTEE TO FRAME CHARTER

Names of the 49 members of the committee to prepare draft of new charter for the city of Malden to be submitted at a mass meeting to be held April 6 are announced today as follows:

Henry Winn, Everett J. Stevens, Clarence A. Walker, George Louis Richards, William A. Hastings, Charles G. Warren, Charles D. McCarthy, Arthur W. Walker, E. F. Bickford, Francis A. Shove, John M. Cobett, Daniel Wise, Charles R. Elder, Frank M. Sawtelle, William G. A. Turner, A. J. Chase, F. J. Bartlett, Eugene C. Upton, Charles Schumaker, the Rev. William E. Dowty, Fred S. Elwell, Calvin M. Verbeck, Owen E. Rooney, Sylvester Baxter, John D. Williams, James Armstrong, Silas M. Spencer, Timothy Mahoney, Allan H. Wylde, William H. Hastings, William D. Serrat, Harold L. Davenport, William J. Hobbs, Frank E. Granger, Henry Thompson, William Niedner, Capt. Lyman H. Richards and George E. Cleaves.

MERIT IN ALDRICH PLAN, SAYS OFFICER OF SHAWMUT BANK

Francis B. Sears, Vice-President, Points Out Features Which He Declares to Be Commendable.

HAS ITS FAULTS TOO

System of Organization and Administration Is Called Unnecessarily Complicated by Boston Man.

"Senator Aldrich's proposition for improving the banking currency situation has many merits. The scheme of capitalization is not original with him but is good," said Francis B. Sears, vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank, today.

"The proposed disposition of earnings is satisfactory, as the national banks which hold the stocks can well afford a moderate return in view of the great advantages.

"The prohibition of the payment of interest on deposits and the transfer of the United States deposits from the subtreasury into the new institution are wise provisions.

"The plan undertakes to relieve the national banks of the bonds which they have been induced to take to secure circulating notes, but makes no provision for the bonds owned by the banks to secure the United States deposits which will be removed.

"The system of organization and administration is unnecessarily complicated. Tax on circulation is high in consideration of the fact that it will be paid by the borrowers.

"No provision is made for withdrawing the United States legal tender notes which have been and always will be a menace to the gold standard. Whether it will be possible for the reserve association when issuing a large amount of

WANT RHODE ISLAND BOARD TO VOTE GIFT OF WATERWAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The General Assembly is to be asked to donate to the United States government a right of way for the proposed Rhode Island link of the intracostal canal from Boston to Beaufort, N. C. The Providence Board of Trade, through its officials and executive committee, has adopted a resolution requesting Governor Pothier to place the matter before the Legislature for action.

The Governor is an official of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, which is backing the canal project, and it is probable that he will make the request to the assembly at this session.

E. Tudor Gross, president of the Board of Trade, announces appointments to committees as follows:

Conservation of resources — Henry A. Barker, Frederick H. Jackson, Roswell B. Burchard, Zenas W. Bliss and Ralph C. Watrous.

Harbor improvements—Joseph U. Starkweather, Frederick H. Jackson, George T. Baker, James Barry and George H. Webb.

Cooperation — Benjamin P. Moulton,

SHIPS GO TO AID DRIFTING LAKME

EUREKA, Cal. — Waterlogged and drifting before a hurricane, the lumber-laden steam schooner Lakme, with 15 men, is off Cape Blanco this morning.

The first news of the Lakme's distress came in signals she sent to the wireless station at Cape Blanco Wednesday afternoon. The wireless operator sent out an "S. O. S." call, which was picked up by the steamers Watson, Argyle and Asuncion. All three responded.

A line was passed to the schooner from the Watson, but it was snapped before a man could cross it. At midnight, the Watson, which is a passenger liner, left the scene.

The rescue steamers are pouring oil on the water in the hope of calming them long enough to take off the Lakme's crew, as the gale has prevented boats being launched.

TWO JAPANESE OFFICIALS QUIT

TOKIO—Premier Katsura, Minister of the Interior Hirata, Minister of Education Komatsubara, and Minister of Agriculture Oura today tendered their resignations. It is generally believed that the growth of the socialist movement in Japan and the feeling of responsibility these cabinet ministers had, are responsible for their action.

DRINKING CUP BILL OPPOSED; POOR MEAT SALES ALLEGED HERE

Representatives of the railroads opposed to day the bill filed by Representative Hathaway of New Bedford, which provides that every passenger car in Massachusetts shall be provided with drinking water and with individual drinking cups equal in number to twice the seating capacity of the car.

A hearing on the bill was held before the committee on public health at the State House. Another hearing was held before the committee on agriculture on the bill proposing to make the state board of health, instead of the cattle bureau, responsible for the regulations for the inspection of meat. Incidentally Dr. S. H. Blodgett of Lincoln told the committee that meat illegally stamped and unfit for food is being shipped into Boston.

At the drinking cup bill hearing it was argued by counsel for the transportation interests that the passage of this measure would put an unwarranted burden on the roads. William H. Coolidge, counsel for the Boston & Maine, said that it would compel the road he represented to furnish at least 150,000 drinking cups a day. The cup, he says,

GRAND TRUNK AIMS TO KILL B. & M. BILL IN VERMONT HOUSE

Permission to Build New Railroad Under Vermont Valley Charter Is Reported by Committee.

TWO IN OPPOSITION

Canadian Line Contests Measure on Ground That It Interferes With Its Terminal Facilities.

MONTPELIER, Vt.—On the floor of the House this afternoon the Grand Trunk interests are striving to block the passage of the Boston & Maine bill for constructing a railroad under the charter of the Vermont Valley line, from South Vernon to Brattleboro and through the yards of Central Vermont at Brattleboro to connect with its line from Brattleboro to Windsor, a right that nas been stubbornly fought by the Grand Trunk interests on the grounds that it interfered with their terminal facilities. A majority of the joint railroad committee on Wednesday reported favorably the bill. Two members of the committee signed a minority report favoring the amendment proposed by the Central Vermont for trackage rights through the Brattleboro yards.

A resolution was introduced in the house by Mr. Davison of Danby, requiring the state superintendent of education to furnish to the House on or before Jan. 21 a detailed account of the expense to the state of his greater Vermont campaign for the biennial period ending Oct. 6 last.

The resolution was ordered to lie and a joint resolution offered by Mr. Bryant of Ludlow was adopted on the part of the House providing for the appointment of a committee of three representatives and two senators to investigate the administration of the affairs of the office of state superintendent of education and report to the General Assembly.

The House afternoon session killed the bill which was ordered to a third reading providing for a central liquor agency and which, in fact, would be a state-wide prohibitory law reappealing the present license law. The sentiment of the House was strongly in favor of leaving the license law alone, as it is considered the best temperance measure that has been on the statute books for 50 years. By a yea and nay vote of 73 to 125 the bill was killed.

HARVARD PAPER URGES THE CAUSE OF TECHNOLOGY

Hope that the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will succeed in increasing its grant from the Legislature, and the opinion that the Harvard scientific school deserves a grant as well, is expressed in the latest issue of the Harvard Bulletin. The Bulletin says:

"No state of the Union is better provided with colleges and scientific schools than Massachusetts. Yet, for all this, Massachusetts has been called upon to open her purse but rarely, and never very wide.

"The Institue of Technology is the largest scientific school in the commonwealth; it is one of which both Massachusetts and Boston have just reason to be proud. The grant which it gets from the public treasury pays for not a tithe of its genuine service to the community. Now that the Institute of Technology has undertaken to get from the Legislature an increase of this grant to the substantial sum of $100,000 per year, the Bulletin earnestly hopes that it will be successful.

"The graduate school of applied science at Harvard, for example, is in a position to urge upon the Legislature claims which we feel sure are not a whit less convincing. For be it remembered that Harvard, no less than the Institute, affords scientific training to scores of Massachusetts boys, from each of whom the university receives in annual fees only a portion of what this education actually costs.

SHEEHAN LOSING VOTES AT ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y.—William F. Sheehan, the Democratic caucus choice for United States senator, lost two votes when today's joint ballot was taken.

Assemblymen Hoyt and Shertt changed from Mr. Sheehan, the former voting for Alton B. Parker and the latter for John D. Kernan.

The result: Sheehan 88, Shepard 13, Parker 7, Littleton 2, Gerard 2, Herrick 2, Kernan 2, Morgan J. O'Brien 1, Chauncey M. Depew 81.

The one ballot taken Wednesday gave Sheehan 90 votes, Edward M. Shepard 13, Alton B. Parker 7, James W. Gerard 3, Martin W. Littleton 2 and D. Cady Herrick 2. All these were Democratic votes.

The Republicans voted solidly for Senator Depew.

Governor Dix received a telegram from Pierre, S. D., signed by B. F. Lyons chairman of the Democratic state committee, and members of the Legislature, saying that the election of William F. Sheehan as United States senator would cost the Democratic party 1,000,000 votes in the West, while the election of a rep-

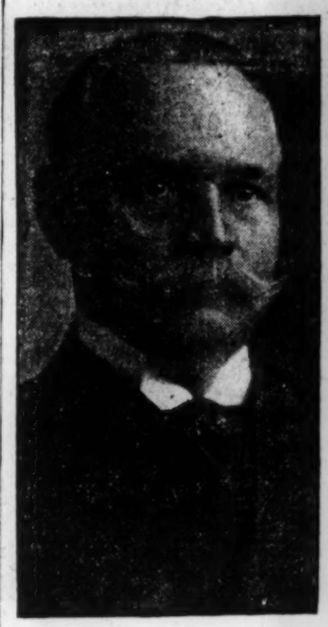
Senator Fletcher Asks for the Adoption of the Anti-Ballinger Report



(Copyright, 1908, by Harris & Ewing.)
DUNCAN U. FLETCHER.
Senator from Florida who takes Mr. Pinchot's side of controversy in speech.

WASHINGTON—In a speech in the Senate today on the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, Duncan U. Fletcher, a Democrat from Florida and a member of the investigating committee, urged the adoption of the minority report censuring Secretary Ballinger.

Senator Fletcher charged that Mr. Ballinger had been "uncandid" in communications to the President and quoted testimony to sustain his charges.

"Mr. Ballinger was uncandid," he said, "in his letter to the President denying L. R. Glavis' statement that after his resignation as commissioner he acted as the legal representative of the Cunningham group and for a large number of others interested in Alaska coal fields. He admitted on the stand that he acted as the legal representative of the Cunningham group."

Mr. Fletcher said that Mr. Ballinger sought to procure the passage of a bill by Congress that would have legalized the Cunningham-Guggenheim claims to Alaska coal lands worth $25,000,000.

BILL TO PUT BOSTON OWNED LINERS UNDER THE AMERICAN FLAG

More than a dozen big white liners, plying between United States and Jamaican, Central and South American ports are soon to hoist the American flag at the taffrail, if a bill now in preparation by Representative Humphrey of Washington for introduction in Congress is passed.

These vessels are owned by the United Fruit Company of Boston, which operates a fleet of about 80 vessels.

Four ships of the company—the Admiral Schley, Admiral Farragut, Admiral Dewey and Admiral Sampson—are already under American registry, but the majority fly the British flag while others operated under charter are of German, Norwegian and Danish registry.

LOSS IN POWNALL, VT., THROUGH FIRE GIVEN AS $40,000

POWNALL, Vt.—A. G. Parker's general store, the postoffice, Mr. Parker's house and barn, the historic Baptist church and two large storehouses were destroyed here by fire this morning. The loss upon the buildings destroyed was estimated at $40,000.

CONVENTION IN 1912 HERE URGES MAYOR

Boston will be the scene of the next Democratic presidential convention if Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has his way.

The mayor started his newest boom this afternoon, following a conference with Robert B. Glenn, former Governor of North Carolina, and a Democrat prominent in Southern politics. Mr. Glenn will be in Boston for about a week in the interests of the education of the southern negro.

ASK NEWTON CITY MESSENGER JOB

A score candidates are in the field for city messenger of Newton, following the announcement of the resignation of Joseph D. Wellington on Feb. 1, after 33 years service.

Mayor Hatfield is not expected to name Mr. Wellington's successor for two weeks. The salary is $1200, but it is likely that a reduction will be made when the new messenger goes into office.

LEGISLATURE ORDERS INQUIRY INTO STREET CAR FACILITIES NORTH

In Response to Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop Demand for Five-Cent Fare to Center of Boston.

LOOP IS FAVORED

W. E. McClintock Says It Should Be Built at Terminal of the East Boston Tunnel at Scollay Square.

Instructions were received today by the railroad commissioners from the Legislature to act jointly with the transit commission for an investigation of the street railway facilities in Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop, with a view to providing further transportation service for the people of those districts.

The report of the joint board is to be made to the Legislature some time early in March.

Citizens of those three municipalities have for some time been seeking a five-cent fare to the center of Boston, either through issuance of transfers between the Boston & Northern Street railway and the Boston Elevated, or by consolidation of the roads.

William E. McClintock, chairman of the Chelsea Board of Control, said today that the people of Chelsea had for a long time been trying to get better street railway facilities to Boston and surrounding sections. He was thoroughly impressed with the report of the joint board last year and said that he believed that the plan to construct a loop at the terminal of the East Boston tunnel at Scollay square was the best proposition.

With a loop at the end of the tunnel similar to the Park street loop Mr. McClintock said that the Boston & Northern cars could be accommodated and the Boston Elevated traffic would be greatly increased. Then Chelsea citizens would have accommodations to all sections of the Boston Elevated system.

Mr. McClintock said the Boston Elevated service into Chelsea only reaches the business district in Broadway as far as the railroad; it does not reach the residential section farther up Broadway and to Prattville: there the Boston & Northern cars run, and to go back and forth to Boston's business section requires eight cents going in and 10 cents coming out.

This condition of affairs, according to McClintock, arises from the fact that on no elevated platform or subway station of the Boston Elevated railway can an eight-cent transfer be purchased.

Persons in outlying sections reached by the Boston Elevated cars can go to Chelsea for eight cents because such transfers are issued on all surface cars of the Boston Elevated but those who take Boston Elevated cars at the tunnel, subway or elevated stations must pay 10 cents to get to the residential section of Chelsea and beyond.

The people of Chelsea want to be able to get to all points of the Boston Elevated system for 5 cents and 1 cent additional for toll through the East Boston tunnel, on an equal footing with other suburbs of Boston.

MR. LODGE'S VICTORY CAUSE OF REJOICING BY LEADING CITIZENS

Expressions of gratification at the vote of the Legislature which insures the continuation of Senator Lodge in the United States Senate for a fourth term were in evidence today among the leaders in public affairs.

Curtis Guild, Jr., former Governor, said: "I am greatly pleased, alike on account of Senator Lodge and on account of the reputation of the commonwealth. My reasons have been so completely stated in the letter read by Mr. Bellamy of Taunton at the caucus that they do not at this time need to be restated."

George H. Lyman, former collector of the port, said: "Everybody whom I have met seems greatly pleased at the result of the election. I've not met a single person who expressed regret or disappointment. The reelection of Senator Lodge will surely prove a great national benefit. He is, without question, the best equipped man for public service in this state. I cannot express how pleased I am myself.

"The animosity to Mr. Lodge centered in two points. These were a personal dislike of the senator, rising from some fancied wrong and a determination to get him out of the way to satisfy a personal ambition. That is the whole story of the opposition to Senator Lodge.

"Massachusetts has been true to her traditions in returning Mr. Lodge to the Senate. She has shown her appreciation of his extraordinary record of service and accomplishment in the interests of the state. This I believe to be the opinion among the educated people of the state."

Samuel L. Powers, former congressman, said: "I am greatly pleased with the result of the election. I have always been a strong advocate of Senator Lodge and consider that it would have been the greatest misfortune to the state if he had failed to be reelected."

James J. Myers, former speaker of the House of Representatives, said: "It is very fortunate for Massachusetts that Senator Lodge has been reelected. Senator Lodge is certainly the best equipped man in the state to represent Massachusetts in Washington."

Sherman L. Whipple, the Democratic candidate, gave out a statement praising Mr. Lodge for his devotion to public service, his high character and his intellectual abilities, and John L. Bates, former Governor, said:

"I am pleased to learn of the reelection of Senator Lodge. I believe the Legislature has acted wisely and in the best interests of the state. The training, ability and experience of the senior senator equip him to represent the commonwealth in a manner which no successor could hope to do. With him and Senator Crane looking after the welfare of this commonwealth in the councils of the nation, Massachusetts will have a representation worthy of its history and unexcelled by any of its sister states."

When the senator heard last night that his townspeople in Nahant were having a special celebration in honor of his election, he said:

"I have just received word of a celebration at Nahant in honor of my reelection. Nothing could touch and gratify me more.

"I have lived in Nahant all my life. I know all the people. They are my friends and neighbors. I am deeply grateful to them, and no show of affection and confidence could mean more to me than theirs."

Speaker Walker is receiving praise for his determined stand in refusing to countenance a movement, inspired by anti-Lodge forces, to keep his name before the Legislature.

Seven members of the Legislature changed their votes from the candidates for whom they voted in the separate sessions of the House and Senate Tuesday.

Senator Martin P. F. Curley of Roxbury, Democrat, who voted for Mr. Whipple Tuesday and for Mr. Lodge yesterday, said that he made the change at the request of Edwin U. Curtis, collector of the port of Boston, an old acquaintance, who did him many favors.

Senator Michael J. Murray of Boston, who made the same change, explained that he did so because he believed the general sentiment in his district was favorable to Mr. Lodge.

Representatives Silvester of Worcester and Wood of Cambridge changed their votes from Speaker Walker to A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard, they said, because Mr. Walker asked them not to vote for him. Mr. Lowell, they thought, was more representative of what the people wanted than any other candidate in the field.

Representatives Arkwell of Worcester and Greenwood of Everett, also, did not vote for the speaker at the latter's request and voted for Senator Lodge.

Representative Killpatrick of Lowell voted for Congressman Ames on Tuesday. He changed his vote to Senator Lodge yesterday, he said, because he did not want to see a deadlock.

Representative McInerney of Boston, the only member of the Legislature who did not vote either day, was present at the State House and would have voted for Senator Lodge had his vote been necessary, he said.

Mr. Whipple in his statement said:

"Nothing could have saved Senator Lodge short of his own high character, intellectual abilities and devotion to public service according to his standards. Another with his reactionary principles and tendencies would have been overwhelmed."

Headed by a brass band, Senator Lodge's neighbors in Nahant formed a procession and with flags and torches, marched through the streets, cheering. The parade was led by Police Chief Thomas Larkin and a squad of patrolmen, followed by the entire fire department. The selectmen were next in line, and the body of the parade was made up of 700 men, with their wives and children.

Returning to the town hall, the parade disbanded and went inside, where speeches were made by Frank Keezer, Charles Vary, chairman of the selectmen; Charles Cabot Johnson, town treasurer; William R. Whitney and others. All praised Senator Lodge for his service to the state and his kindness as a neighbor.

PLAN TO ORGANIZE MORALITY COUNCIL

It is proposed to organize a "Boston Council for the Promotion of Public Morality" at a meeting called for Jan. 30 at the Twentieth Century Club.

About 75 religious and civic organizations are expected to be represented at the meeting. This committee drafting a constitution: The Rev. Dr. W. H. Van Allen, the Rev. Dr. John Galbraith, the Rev. W. E. Waterbury, the Rev. R. E. Sykes, the Rev. George A. Lyons, the Rev. Thomas Woods, the Rev. F. B. Richards, the Rev. A. L. Howe.

RAISE KENNEBEC AT WOODS HOLE

WOODS HOLE, Mass. — The freight steamer Kennebec, which went aground on the rocks in the fog off here several weeks ago, putting a big hole in her hull, and making it necessary for the crew to be taken off by the rescue tugs, today was raised by wrecking tugs and towed to Tarpaulin Cove for repairs.

NOT TO CURTAIL IN RHODE ISLAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Cotton manufacturers here intimate that they will not be governed by the action taken by the Arkwright Club in Boston recommending a curtailment on production of 25 per cent. This would mean that thousands of hands in Rhode Island mills will not be affected.

INDEPENDENT BOY SCOUTS.

WATERTOWN, Mass.—A company of boy scouts independent of the national organization has been organized by members of St. John's Methodist church with an enrolment of 30. The directors of the work believe that better results can be obtained with an independent body.

TRAIN DERAILED AT LYONS, NEV.

LOS ANGELES—A train bound from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles and due here Wednesday morning was derailed at Lyons, Nev., 16 passengers being injured.

BANKERS ARE DIVIDED OVER FINANCIAL PLAN OF SENATOR ALDRICH

currency in a time of stringency to accumulate the required gold reserve without adding to the disturbance is not clear.

"The immense amount of gold lying in the United States treasury should be transferred to the central reserve institution which should issue the gold certificate now issued by the government and the silver certificates as well. The legal tender notes should be redeemed or funded and finally retired.

"With this immense gold reserve the central institution could safely issue what additional circulating notes might be needed based upon the commercial paper which they would discount and the excessive circlation would be speedily retired by maturity of the discounted paper.

"We want either a central bank or we don't want one. It is not worth while to follow the example of the sportsman who fired at an animal in the bushes so as to hit if it were a deer and miss it if it were a calf."

Chicago Banker's Views

CHICAGO—While finding much in the Aldrich plan of financial revision to commend, bankers of this city refused in general to commit themselves to its indorsement in its entirety when asked for their opinions yesterday.

George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental & Commercial National Bank, a member of the Chicago Clearing House Association committee and a friend of Senator Aldrich, was found perhaps to be its strongest friend. He said:

"With such an organization of the banks as the plan provides for there would be eventually such a distribution of credit that the large centers would not have the dominating influence they now have, and with the plan put in full working order the probability of severe financial stress seems to be fairly eliminated.

"The local associations provided for will prove a check on overexpansion by the smaller institutions. It will mean that the governor of the reserve association can say when application is made for credit or notes, 'you must get the indorsement of the banks in your local association.'

"If there were no other provision in the plan than this for dealing with the reserve association, it would be almost impossible to operate under it. But there is a paragraph which fully provides for operations by the larger banks.

"So far as I can see, that provision will enable the large banks to secure notes or credit with the reserve association without undue delay."

James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank, said:

"The foundation principles on which it is based are the confederation of the national banks and the concentration of their cash reserves. The lack of these in our present system constitutes its greatest weakness and the plan proposed by Senator Aldrich, recognizing this weakness, evolves a method by which it can be overcome. To this extent I am heartily in accord with the plan."

Criticized by L. M. Shaw

PHILADELPHIA—Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the treasury, regards as vicious Senator Aldrich's plan to improve the currency system of this country.

Business Men Like It

WASHINGTON—General indorsement of the principal features of the Aldrich plan of financial revision and high praise for submitting to the public a basis for criticism of monetary reform were conspicuous in the numerous addresses of the business men's monetary conference held under the auspices of the National Board of Trade on Wednesday.

COL. ROOSEVELT FOR INSURGENTS

HACKENSACK, N. J.—A letter from Theodore Roosevelt, in which he expresses the hope that the Progressive Republican movement will be successful, was read last night at the first annual banquet of the Progressive Republican League of Bergen county.

"All I can say," runs the letter, in part, "is that I very earnestly hope for the success of the Progressive Republican movement, which, as I interpret it, is to keep the party true to the principles of the men who founded it in Lincoln's day and to apply those principles practically to living conditions."

cost half a cent apiece wholesale. Mr. Coolidge said he believed the bill was backed by the makers of the drinking cups.

The Boston & Albany railroad was represented by Woodward Hudson and the New York, New Haven & Hartford by Arthur P. Russell. Representatives Doyle of New Bedford and Cavanaugh of Everett favored the bill.

Hearing on Election Dispute

Following a hearing on the petition of Ignatius J. Carleton of Chelsea, protesting the election of Representative Kiernan of Chelsea, the House committee on elections voted today to introduce an order authorizing the committee to summon and swear witnesses and to send for proper papers.

Mr. Carleton protested on the ground that Representative Kiernan was not a legal resident of the fifth Suffolk district.

Compensation Board Heard

Before the committee on judiciary (joint) of the Legislature today James A. Lowell, chairman of the commission on compensation for industrial injuries presented the reasons why that commission asks for an extension of time to report a bill and in favor of its recommendation for the passage of act making it compulsory upon employers to report to the commission all mishaps. Mr. Lowell's reasons were, first, the absence of statistics of accidents of any value whatever in Massachusetts, and, second, that a law to be of any value should be uniform with legislation in other states.

Ralph S. Bauer, president of the Lynn Board of Trade, endorsed the request of the commission. He thought it the unanimous wish of every business organization in the state that there should be a fair compensation act.

Everett S. Morse of the Simplex Electric Company, Albian P. Peters, secretary of the Employers Association of Massachusetts, Attorney Charles M. Thayer for the Draper Manufacturing Company of Hopedale and the Crompton Loom Works of Worcester favored the recommendation of the commission to extend the time. Mr. Thayer said that both his clients are heartily in favor of the principle of a workingmen's compensation act. Frank E. Dunbar of Lowell, Professor Dewey of the Carroll D. Wright commission of 1903, favored the proposition of the commission.

Representative Joseph A. Parks of Fall River, the labor representative on the commission, said that he knew that his labor friends would say that this is a put-off of labor, but he wished to say to them that in his judgment labor will be the gainer if the extension of time is granted to the commission.

Charles G. Bancroft, attorney for the Arkwright Club, but speaking personally, said that it was recognized by all employers of labor that this workingmen's compensation is coming. They therefore wanted to get the right kind of a statute.

John Weaver Sherman, chairman of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor, opposed the suggestion of the commission for an extension of time.

COLONEL PACKARD FOR SCHOOL POST

Governor Foss, through his adjutant-general, Brig.-Gen. Gardner W. Pearson, has detailed for duty as secretary of the service school, M. V. M., Lieut.-Col. P. Frank Packard, retired, relieving Lieut.-Col. William S. Simmons, assistant adjutant-general.

Yesterday afternoon a board consisting of Brig.-Gen. Embury P. Clark, commanding the first brigade, Brig.-Gen. William A. Pew, commanding the second brigade, Brig.-Gen. Gardner W. Pearson, the adjutant-general, and Lieut. Col. P. Frank Packard, retired, chief of staff, met at the State House to "prepare a plan of maneuvers for the annual tour of camp duty to embrace all organizations of the Massachusetts volunteer militia, with the exception of the coast artillery corps."

BOARD OF TRADE ASKS REFORESTRY WORK FOR STATE

Resolutions calling for vigorous work in reforesting lands lying waste in Massachusetts were passed at the monthly luncheon of the State Board of Trade at the Vendome late Wednesday afternoon.

Upon the recommendations of George A. Fiel of Waltham, chairman of the committee on statistics and information, the board approved the plan for widening and deeping the channel of the Cape Cod canal.

Indorsement was also given to the savings bank insurance as conducted in this state, to the plan to have all foreign residents for United States ambassadors provided by this government and to the proposed investigation of expressg companies by the interstate commerce commission.

YOUNGER PAINTERS OF BOSTON OPEN THEIR EXHIBITION

Younger Painters of Boston began an exhibition today at the Twentieth Century Club, 3 Joy street, which continues until Feb. 3, Saturday and Sunday excepted. The hours are from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The exhibition was organized by Miss Marian Howard, who has two of the most interesting landscapes in the exhibition—"Wequetequrch" and "The Old Road to the Sea."

The jury for the exhibition is comprised of Herman Dudley Murphy, George L. Hayes and Frank Hopkinson. Of these portraits at the end of the gallery which attract attention, that of Earnest L. Major is said to be a good likeness. Miss Mary B. Hazelton has three pictures, one being that of "A Girl Reading."

A small portrait by N. B. Triccoli is cleverly painted. Mary B. Titcomb has made Faneuil hall square appear foreign. "Cyprus" is by John Shannon and "October Words" by W. Lester Stevens.

One of two pictures by J. Eliot.

One of two pictures by J. Eliot Enneking, the son of a famous father, is "May Day in the Woods."

One the whole the exhibition is said by artists to be creditable.

ALLIANCE MEETS AT ARLINGTON

The New England Associate Alliance is holding an all-day meeting with the Arlington branch of the National Alliance in the First Parish church today.

The morning session was opened with an address by the Rev. Frederic Gill, pastor of the church. Then the Rev. Miss Margaret B. Barnard of Rowe spoke on "The Social Problem of a Country Church," while Miss Hope Fagan, parish assistant of the First Parish, Dorchester, followed, taking "Social Service in the Tuckerman School" as her subject. The Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman of Braintree gave a short talk on "The Braintree People's Forum."

Following the roll-call at noon a basket lunch was served by the Arlington Alliance.

COMMENTS ON JAPANESE CASE.

Commenting on the report of an assault on U. S. Vice-Consul Williamson at Dalny, Manchuria, Bunkio Matsuki, a Japanese resident of Boston, says that such action by Japanese fish mongers is in no way representative of the feelings of the Japanese toward Americans. The fish market of Japanese cities, he says, are notoriously infested with anarchists. While the fish markets remain as they are nothing that happens in one of them should be regarded as having the slightest political significance, according to Mr. Matsuki.

CONTROL OF CAUCUS IN HANDS OF CLIQUE, SAYS TEXAS MEMBER

WASHINGTON—On the eve of the Democratic caucus tonight for the organization of the next House, the House Republicans today circulated a letter written by Representative Martin Dies, Democrat (Texas), charging that a clique has planned to control the caucus and to dictate the committees of the next House.

While Mr. Dies' letter seemed to indicate that all would not be harmony at the caucus, leaders in the movement for the indorsement of Champ Clark for speaker declared today that the program would go through without serious opposition. There will be a contest over the system to be used in the revision of the tariff. Champ Clark favoring the schedule by schedule plan and others demanding a general revision. No serious trouble on this point is expected, however.

Mr. Dies' letter, which absolves Champ Clark and Representative Underwood, ranking member of the ways and means committee, from complicity in the "plot" has been taken as an indication that the 84 new members of the next House may bring charges of being overridden by the present members.

Representatives Peters and Keliher of Massachusetts attended the harmony dinner at Baltimore and they said that the reports indicating friction between Senator Bailey and Representative Champ Clark on the matter of tariff revision did not reflect the true spirit of the dinner. Harmony prevailed throughout, they said, and what difference there was between Mr. Bailey and Mr. Clark was only as to the method of accomplishing something all were agreed upon, a thorough revision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

At the call of Representative-elect John Alden Thayer (Democrat) of Massachusetts, 20 or more of the newly elected Democratic congressmen now in Washington will hold a caucus this afternoon at the New Willard to decide upon the course they will pursue at the general caucus of the whole Democratic membership of the House this evening.

Dalzell Plan Favored

Along the lines of the Dalzell bill a permanent tariff board was agreed upon by the 12 Republican members of the House committee on ways and means Wednesday by a vote of 8 to 4.

Action was taken after a long discussion of the two leading plans, the Longworth bill favored by the administration and the Dalzell bill.

The Longworth bill provides for a commission of five members at $7500 each annually, and the Dalzell bill fixes three members, the chairman drawing $7500 and the other two $7000 each.

It authorizes the board to investigate anywhere, though the President's consent is necessary to inquiries abroad, and the representatives' reports are to be made to the President or the House ways and means committee or the Senate finance committee whenever called upon.

The Dalzell bill does not provide for the powers of requiring attendance of witnesses, production of books and papers, etc.

Defends Senator Lorimer

Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, came to the support of Senator Lorimer when the Senate resumed consideration of his case on Wednesday, Senator Borah made a speech in opposition.

Mr. Burrows commended the course of Mr. Lorimer in demanding an investigation. Mr. Borah declared that corruption had characterized the proceedings ever since Mr. Lorimer had decided to become a candidate for the Senate.

Both addresses were sharply analytical and both went at length into the testimony. Frequently they quoted the same statements, but their deductions were widely at variance.

The speeches resembled each other in the fact that both criticized the conduct of Representative White, whose statement in a Chicago newspaper led to the investigation; but while Senator Borah contended for the probable truthfulness of his revelations as indicated by supporting circumstances, the Michigan senator found nothing to sustain him or give credence to his exposition. The Burrows speech is the first that has been made in Lorimer's favor.

A bill to prevent corrupt practises in the election of any official under the constitution was introduced in the Senate Wednesday by Senator Beveridge. It makes a felony of the giving or receiving of bribes under penalty of fine and imprisonment.

CINCINNATI—Two United States senatorships are the prizes in a game of West Virginia politics, one end of which is being played by the Democrats in Charleston, the capital, and the other by 15 Republican runaway senators domiciled in Cincinnati.

By staying away from West Virginia, the Republicans prevent the forming of a legal quorum and it was said by the voluntary exiles in Cincinnati today that the election of Watson and Chilton by the Democrats will therefore be illegal.

Nathan B. Scott and Davis Elkins, Republicans, will probably continue to represent the state in the United States Senate for at least two years more as Governor Glasscock, it is said, will refuse to give the new Democratic United States senators their commissions and thus prevent them from taking their seats.

The 15 state senators, if necessary, intend to remain in Cincinnati 45 days.

DES MOINES, Ia.—G. A. Feeley has withdrawn from the senatorial race in Iowa. The effort to select a successor to Senator Dolliver, shows no other material change today. Senator Lafayette Young, who was appointed ad interim, still leads the field.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Clarence W. Watson of Fairmont, W. Va., coal operator, has been nominated by the Democrats of the West Virginia Legislature in caucus to fill out the term of Senator Elkins, and W. E. Chilton was nominated for the long term to Succeed Senator Nathan B. Scott, Republican.

CASHIERS INDORSE BANKING REFORMS

National banking reforms, as advocated by Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, were approved in resolutions adopted by the National Bank Cashiers Association of Massachusetts at its dinner Wednesday evening.

Caleb L. Brigham, president, was in the chair and about 75 members were present. The guests were Frank B. Tracy and Charles A. Ruggles, manager of the Boston clearing house.

BURN OLD TREASURY RECORDS.

In order to remedy the congestion in the storerooms of the internal revenue department, Collector James D. Gill has given orders for the destruction of old records dating from 1905 back for 30 years. CHICAGO PREPARES FOR SEVEN INDOOR ATHLETIC CONTESTS

Strong in Short-Distance Track Events With Few Good Field Men to Pick Up Points.

STARS FOR RELAYS

CHICAGO—Upon announcement of the most satisfactory schedule of indoor meets secured in many years, the University of Chicago track team is now at winter training with prospects for an interesting season. Seven meets have been arranged, including the indoor conference intercollegiate, which is nearly twice the usual number. Norwestern, Purdue and Illinois will each be taken on for one home and one return meet. Wisconsin will not do much in track until the outdoor season, so the usual meets between maroon and cardinal are omitted this winter. Following is Chicago's schedule:

Jan. 28, Northwestern at Chicago.
Feb. 3, Purdue at Lafayette; 18, Illinois at Champaign.

As in former years, Chicago's strength is in the short runs and the field events. The strongest event is probably the quarter with six Philadelphia relay men on the list, two of which are consistently better than 50s., and a seventh who is claimed by some to be better than all the others. The team this year is made up almost entirely of old point winners.

In the dash there is a strong line-up, with Straube, winner of the 1909 conference 100; Eberle Wilson, the leading recruit from the 1913 team; W. H. Kuh, second to Straube at Illinois last year, and G. S. Skinner, a cross-country man who won the dash in the inter-class meet. Straube is probably the fastest man, with a consistent mark of 53-5s.

The hurdles will be well cared for by Crawley, captain of last year's football team, Menaul, the former Englewood star, G. E. Kuh and L. H. Whiting.

The 440 combination includes Davenport, Straube, Earle, Gifford, Menaul, Timblin and Skinner. Ira Davenport is perhaps the greatest quarter-miler that ever wore the maroon. His achievements in last year's conference, winning the quarter in 48 4-5s. and the half in 1m. 56 3-5s., has never been equalled in American intercollegiate history. Taylor of Pennsylvania once did 48 4-5s. in the quarter, and Parsons of Yale holds the record of 1m. 56 2-5s., but never before have these two marks been set by one man in one meet.

Straube has a record of 49 2-5s., made in 1909. Earle, Gifford, Menaul and Timblin have all held places on the Philadelphia relay team. Skinner has not much past performance to his credit, but is doing fast work now and is forecasted by some critics as an exceptional man. It is likely that Davenport, Earle and Gifford will be used in the quarter, and Straube saved for the dash and half, Menaul for the high jump, Timblin for the half and Skinner in the distances. The half has the same men, with the addition of Donovan, a 1913 man, who has a mark of 2m. 2s.

Scholarship troubles make the two best distance men ineligible, Gowley and Reed, both last year's freshmen with marks in the mile below 4m. 35s. There is left Long, a good consistent worker, but not a star, and Timblin, Donovan and Carpenter. Long won the mile in the Illinois indoor meet last year. Carpenter is a cross-country man.

Four good men are out for the pole vault, Captain Rogers, Coyle, Baldwin and Crawley. Rogers is a good indoor man, with a mark of 11 ft. 5 ins. Crawley has the same record, but will probably not be used in this event owing to the number of other events in which he will be needed. Coyle, 11 ft. 3 ins., is eligible for the first time since he entered the university three years ago. Baldwin, 11 ft. 3 ins., is a former Amherst man eligible this year. However, he may not vault this year.

Crawley and Menaul are brought out in the high jump, both 5 ft. 10 in. men. They are also in the shot, with Wilson the third man. Menaul has been doing 43 and 44 ft. consistently in practise.

PROF. FRIEDLAENDER TO LECTURE.

PRINCETON FIVE SHOWS BIG LACK OF TEAM-WORK

Squad Is Composed of Light Men Which Has Handicapped Them in Their League Games.

PRINCETON, N. J.—The Princeton varsity basketball team has been clearly outclassed in the recent intercollegiate games, going down before Pennsylvania, Columbia and West Point in succession. The Tigers started the year with some good playing, but lack of team-work in the early training remains, in mid-season, their greatest fault and they cannot get the ball within shooting distance of the enemy's goal. At goal shooting they are still rather weak so have not rolled up any large scores agains. any of the other college fives.

C. Heath '12, one of the best men on the team, has been out of the game for some time and R. Carter '11 and H. L. Felt '12 are playing the forwards. Captain B. Hughes '11 plays center and is a hard man to out-jump. He gives his men the chance for team plays on almost every jump. The guards are F. C. Hughes '12 and F. A. Kahler '12, with Walter Sparks '11 as substitute. Sparks has not been out long for the team but looks like a good man. He was right halfback on the football team for the last two years and is fast, his greatest handicap being size and weight. The two regular guards have been playing a fair game at guarding their men but are very weak at goal throwing.

The team as a whole lacks heavy men and is at a disadvantage on this account. The small men are fast but it is hard for a light man to guard a large man successfully. P. Carter has been doing the best work lately and has made some brilliant shots, but the ball has not been under the other team's goal enough to allow much scoring and the Tigers will have to develop their team work before they can win games. Coach Shorter is working them hard at nightly practise to perfect this and they hope soon to take a brace, both in this and in goal throwing.

Last year the games with Yale were very exciting and the Tigers showed a burst of speed and form that was surprising. They are going to try to repeat that and take the rest of their games. It is not likely that they can take them all, but a better showing is expected than that made during the early schedule. They will play Cornell at the Columbia gymnasium Jan. 21, and on Feb. 9 will meet Pennsylvania here. So they have plenty of hard work ahead of them and will have to improve a great deal to make a good record. Yale will be played on Feb. 14 at New Haven and Feb. 22 here, this game closing the Tiger schedule.

In the first intercity match of the Boston Hockey League the Boston Hockey seven defeated the Providence Hockey Club team in the Boston Arena Wednesday night, 3 to 0. Both teams played far below their usual form. Providence had more speed than Boston expected. The visitors were reinforced by Read, the Princeton coverpoint of last year, and showed a steady defense.

Boston had the better attack. Its men followed shots, while the Providence men were shooting from almost the middle of the rink. Goalkeeper Budlong of Providence, although hampered by the close playing of the point, managed to make some pretty stops. The summary:

NEW YORK—Followers of the Intercollegiate Hockey League are beginning to regard Dartmouth as a possibility for a position well up in the championship series of 1911 today following the decisive victory of the Hanover college eleven over Princeton in the St. Nicholas ring Wednesday night by a score of 6 to 3. It was Dartmouth's second league game and leaves the team with one victory and one defeat.

In the second half Dartmouth made three goals, while its opponents failed to score. This was surprising, because the play was mostly in Dartmouth territory, but the Princeton players did not seem to know what to do with the puck when they got it, and even when they did shoot, Norris was always in the way and the puck could not find the net. Those three goals, added to three made by each side in the first half, made the final total 6 to 3 in favor of Dartmouth. The summary:

COLUMBIA TRACK SCHEDULE OUT

NEW YORK—The Columbia University track management has announced the schedule of meets for the coming winter season, which will begin on Saturday night, when Columbia will be represented in the annual carnival of the Brooklyn postoffice clerks.

The annual interclass relay race, which has always been a feature of the Columbia indoor carnival, has been transferred to the annual meet of the New York Athletic Club, and the one-mile race for the Baxter cup will also be held at that meet. The list of meets in which the Columbia teams will take part is as follows:

Feb. 4, Irish-American Athletic Club annual indoor games, Madison Square Garden; 11, Boston A. A. annual meet, Boston; 18, New York A. C. games, Madison Square Garden; 21, Hartford A. C. games, Hartford, Conn.
March 14, Pastime A. C. games at Madison Square Garden.

FORMAL OPENING OF BOSTON ARENA CURLING RINKS

Members of Curling Club of Boston Play Two Matches —Brae-Burn and T. C. C. Each Take One.

Curling rinks, built indoors for the Curling Club of Boston, were formally opened at the Boston Arena, Wednesday, by matches between players from Brae-Burn and the Country Club. When the first stone was cast along the ice, W. C. Purdie, a Scottish Highlander in costume began cheering the men who were playing the ancient game of his country, with a tune on the bagpipes.

The Curling Club of Boston is composed of players of considerable skill in the roaring game from the Country Club, Brae-Burn and the Boston Curling Club.

The impromptu curling matches on two rinks between players from The Country and the Brae-Burn Clubs began late in the afternoon. They were merely practise matches, and each club won a match.

The side skipped by E. A. Daniels on rink No. 1 won over the team of F. B. Witherbee in an eight-end match, and on rink 2. The Country Club side skipped by H. Jaques, after having led for considerable of the match with F. M. Gould's team, lost in 12 ends by a margin of five points. In two ends the Country Club players in this match lost seven points to the Brae-Burn players, and this enabled them to win.

RINK 1.

F. M. Gould's side, 15 points; H. Jaques' 10; 12 ends.

MUCH INTEREST IN INDOOR MEET

CHICAGO—As a climax to the western winter track season this year comes the conference intercollegiate indoor meet March 25 in the Northwestern University gymnasium at Evanston. This will be the first indoor intercollegiate ever held in the West and it is looked upon with favor by coaches, athletes and student followers of the sport alike. It promises to be an interesting event, as most of the conference institutions have signified their intention to compete, and some of the best material in the country will be brought out.

The Northwestern gymnasium is an ideal place for the meet on account of the large building and good facilities for handling the crowds. The athletes like it because of the long dirt track (one tenth of a mile). All the regular indoor events will be on the list—runs from 60 yards to two miles, high jump, pole vault, shotput, and the relay. In all events four places will count points, in order, 5, 3, 2, 1, according to the regular conference rules. Only members of the conference will be permitted to enter teams.

DE ORO RETAINS HIS POOL TITLE

NEW YORK—Alfred De Oro successfully defended his title to the world's pool championship Wednesday night in the final block of his 600-point match with William Clearwater of Pittsburg. The total score was: De Oro, 600; Clearwater, 503.

At the close of the contest Thomas Hueston of St. Louis challenged De Oro to a championship match, and the Cuban announced that he would accept the challenge in the event of John Daly declining his (De Oro's) challenge for the three-cushion billiard championship. It had been stated that if De Oro retained the championship he would forfeit the title and devote his time entirely to the three-cushion game.

C. C. CURLERS PLAY MONTREAL.

Curlers from the Country Club leave Boston this evening for Montreal for the annual match with the Royal Montreal Club, to be played Friday and Saturday. Three rinks of players will represent the Clyde Park Club in this international contest and Boston enthusiasts await the outcome with considerable interest.

AUGUST HERRMANN WITHDRAWS.

NEW YORK—August Herrmann of the Cincinnati club, who was recently appointed a member of the National league rules committee, has sent to President Lynch his resignation as a member of that committee. Mr. Dreyfus of Pittsburg has been appointed to take his place.

E. H. S. SENIORS WIN.

The English high interclass track and field games in the drill hall, Montgomery street, Wednesday afternoon, resulted in an easy victory for the seniors, with a score of 40 points. The sophomores were second with 32 points, the juniors third with 4 and the freshmen made 1 point.

BOSTON AMERICANS SIGN CATCHER.

President J. I. Taylor of the Boston Americans has signed a catcher named L. G. Nomemaden of Bloomington, Ill. He was at one time under contract to the Chicago Nationals, but never received a trial with them.

BROWN TRACK SQUAD NOW PREPARING FOR TWO INDOOR MEETS

Prospects of Turning Out Some Good Point Winners Now Seem Very Bright at Providence.

MANY FOR RELAYS

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Track athletes at Brown University are preparing for two important athletic meets to come within the next few weeks, one here and one in Boston. The present stage of development of the members of the squad does not give promise of sweeping victory; but the coaches are more than confident that the wearers of the brown and white will acquit themselves with credit.

The first meet is to be held under the auspices of the R. I. N. G. at the state armory. While many of the events will be for guardsmen only, a long schedule of open events has been arranged for the athletes of the state. The high school stars and college men from Brown and the State College at Kingston have been entered in these open contests. A week after this meet the Brown men will go to Boston for the annual B. A. A. games.

Brown has many veterans on the track squad and with these as a foundation Captain Marble and Trainer Huggins believe they can form a fast team. Marble will take the most prominent part in the hurdles. He won points in the intercollegiate events last season and his form this year is better than it was then.

N. S. Taylor, who won third place in the intercollegiate meet at Philadelphia last season in the one-mile run, is again practising and is in good condition. C. F. Roper and G. Roberts are two men who have had previous expxerience at Brown in long distance runs, mostly in the two-mile event. Both are eligible to enter.

Captain Marble will be assisted by two more good men in the hurdling events. R. W. Leith and F. V. Young are among the members of the squad and from appearances will give good accounts of themselves. H. M. Rosenberg appears to be the leader among the high jumpers and while he is not expected to land first place he will without doubt count in the points.

D. H. Kulp, a football player, is making good distances with the hammer. In the shot put Brown has two good men, one of whom, however, may become ineligible because of studies. J. J. Frank has returned to college after being absent one term, and should he pass the eligibility requirements, he will take a leading part in this event. O. M. Kratz is out for the same event.

Among the freshmen there are several stars. A. E. Bartlett of Worcester, who a few days ago smashed the college "strong man" records by large figures, is among the freshmen who are expected to make a good record in shot putting, high jumping and hammer throwing. Bartlett will, in all probability, develop into Brown's best man in recent years and the coaches are watching him with keen interest.

R. Holden is another freshman who is out for the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Louis Fine will take a prominent part in the distance runs, having been a marathon runner of note in several of the B. A. A. contests. P. Jetter and Austin Cook will be among the entrants in the quarter-mile events, from present prospects.

In former years Brown has had no pole vaulter. This season, however, Carl Firebaugh gives signs of making good in that event and the coaches believe that for the first time in three years Brown will enter a man in the pole vault. Firebaugh is a freshman coming from New York city.

Candidates for the relay team are numerous and there is but little doubt that the four men finally chosen to constitute the team will be among the fastest in the college. Three of the crack team of last year are in college, but unfortunately two of them may be declared ineligible because of studies. These two are D. L. Mahoney and D. R. Mahoney of Newton, Mass., twin brothers.

The men who are trying for these positions are F. V. Young, a veteran relay man, the two Mahoney brothers, also veterans of last year, William V. Winslow, F. E. Miles, R. Holden, S. T. Jarvis, R. W. Leith, H. Hubbard, H. Burke, N. Pingree, Cooke, P. Jetter, Tucker, Carl Firebaugh and several others.

COLLEGE NINE TO MEET NATIONALS

CHICAGO—Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago is anxious to try out his baseball stars against the champion Chicago Nationals and today proposed to President Murphy that a series of games be arranged when the Chicagos return in April from their training camp in the South. They are already booked to try conclusions.

Mentor Building CHERRIER'S CHICAGO TAILORS For Men and Women

RATIONAL Ggolf

By JASON ROGERS

Under the heading "Rules Worth Remembering," the World of Golf prints the following:

This is the season of casual water; the rules concerning it are worth studying.

If your ball lie or be lost in casual water through the green, you may drop a ball, without penalty, within two club lengths of the margin of the water.

But it is writ that you shall drop as near as possible to the spot where the ball lay, and not in any case nearer to the hole.

If the ball when dropped roll into the water, you may drop it again without penalty.

If, on the putting-green, your ball lie in asual water, or casual water intervene between your ball and the hole, you may, if you choose, lift it and place it where it lies. It is much more likely, however, that if you prefer the following alternative mode of procedure.

You may, in the circumstances aforementioned, lift the ball without penalty and place it by hand—either within two club lengths directly behind the spot from which it was lifted or in the nearest position to that spot, which affords a putt to the hole without casual water intervening.

But here, as through the green, the ball must not be taken nearer to the hole before being played.

If your ball lie so close to casual water that the latter interfere with your stance, you may treat the ball as though it lay in casual water.

* * *

If, in dropping the ball, it roll into a hazard, you may redrop the ball without penalty.

Through the green you may remove any loose impediment lying within a club length of the ball without penalty. If, however, the ball move after the removal of such loose impediment you shall be deemed to have caused the ball to move, and the penalty shall be one stroke.

And if a ball in play move after you have grounded your club in the act of addressing it, the penalty is one stroke.

If you play while your ball is moving, except in the case of a teed ball, the penalty is loss of the hole.

If your ball strike or be stopped or be moved by your opponent or your opponent's caddy, your opponent loses the hole.

The only exception to this rule is when you or your caddy in searching for your opponent's ball accidentally touch or move it. Then no penalty is incurred.

You may stand out of bounds to play a ball lying within bounds.

When you play your ball out of bounds from the teeing-ground you may tee another ball. In every other case the ball must be dropped.

Loss of the hole is the penalty for failing to drop the ball in a proper manner. The rule reads: "The player himself shall drop it. He shall face the hole, stand erect, and drop the ball behind him over his shoulder."

DARTMOUTH WILL HAVE SOUTHERN TRIP FOR NINE

HANOVER, N. H.—That the Dartmouth varsity baseball nine will have plenty of games on its schedule this season is evident from the list given out by Manager Agry. The southern trip, which has not been taken for three years, will be taken again this spring.

There are games with eight teams not on last year's list: Yale, Princeton, Penn, Georgetown, Columbia, Penn State, Army and Syracuse. Colby will not be played this year. At home there will be 12 games, 15 away. The schedule is subject to change. It follows:

April 8, Georgetown at Washington; 10, Eastern College at Manassas, Va.; 11, Cornell at Washington; 12, Princeton at Atlantic City; 14, U. of P. at Atlantic City; 15, U. of P. at Atlantic City; 17, Yale at Washington; 18, Columbia at New York; 19, Army at West Point; 25, Bowdoin at Hanover; 26, Bowdoin at Hanover; 29, Massachusetts Algricultural at Hanover.

May 2, Lafayette at Hanover; 4, Syracuse at Syracuse; 5, Cornell at Ithaca; 6, Cornell at Ithaca; 9, Tufts at Hanover; 13, Vermont at Hanover; 18, Cornell at Hanover; 20, Williams at Williamstown; 23, Vermont at Burlington; 25, Williams at Hanover; 26, Penn State at Hanover; 29, Penn State at Medford; 30, Holy Cross at Worcester.

June 3—Harvard at Cambridge; 8, U. of P. at Hanover; 20, Amherst at Amherst; 27, Amherst at Hanover.

AWARD "N. H." TO ELEVEN.

DURHAM, N. H.—At a meeting of the Athletic Association of the New Hampshire College, held Wednesday, the following men were awarded their N. H.'s in football: Capt. B. F. Proud '11, Howard Sanborn '13, F. S. Davison '12, R. C. Morgan '12, J. B. Pettingill '12, C. M. Lowd '12, T. J. Twomey '13, P. C. Jones '13, B. H. Clark '14, T. Reardon '14, W. Brackett '14, R. E. Haines '12, C. W. Keene '11, Fred Swasey '12.

BROWN FIVE BEATS TUFTS.

PROVIDENCE — Brown's basketball team defeated the five from Tufts Wednesday night at the Lyman gymnasium by a score of 26 to 20. This is the first victory scored by the Providence boys over the Medford team since the season of 1906.

COLUMBIA HAS HARD SCHEDULE FOR HER FENCERS

NEW YORK—A hard and long season has been arranged for the Columbia University fencing team this winter, for the schedule announced by G. M. Marshall, the manager, contains a total of 11 contests.

There will be no meets with Harvard or the Massachusetts teams, which have had places in the list formerly, but a dual meet will be held with Syracuse, and in addition Columbia will meet Syracuse in a triangular meet with Princeton. The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 28, Manrique trophy contest, Brooklyn.
Feb. 13, Saltus medal contest, at the Fencers' Club; 17, Cornell at Ithaca; 18, Syracuse at Syracuse; 21, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 25, West Point at West Point.
March 3, Princeton, Syracuse and Columbia in triangular meet at Columbia; 17, Princeton at Princeton; 28, Yale at Columbia; 25, intercollegiate preliminaries at Annapolis; 31 and April 1, intercollegiate championships at the Hotel Astor, New York.

TENNEY CONFERS WITH M'GRAW.

NEW YORK—Fred Tenney, the new manager of the Boston Nationals, and his former manager, John J. McGraw of the Nationals, are negotiating for the sale of some of the New York's reserve players to Boston. Tenney conferred with McGraw for several hours last night and they got together again today. Tenney wants to purchase Beals Becker back again and would like to buy a couple of good infielders.

TUFTS SOPHOMORES WIN.

MEDFORD, Mass.—Tufts sophomores won the annual indoor interclass meet held in Goddard gymnasium Wednesday night by a margin of six points over the juniors. The complete point score was: Sophomores 22, juniors 16, with the seniors and freshmen tied for third place. Russell P. Wise set a new mark in the 20-yard hurdles, winning the preliminary heat in three seconds flat.

BUILDING OF STATION IN NEW HAVEN TO BE A STEP TO ELECTRIFY

Engineers Busy Laying Out a Track System to Fit the Numerous Improvements Contemplated in Elm City.

MOVE ROUNDHOUSE

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Announcement by the board of directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, that the erection of a new station at New Haven will begin in the spring, is welcome news to thousands of travelers who stop at or pass through the "City of Elms."

New Haven, in which is located the headquarters of Mr. Mellen's system, is the largest and most important railroad center in New England, outside of Boston, as 178 passenger trains arrive and depart daily from this point.

The engineering department of the road has for many months been at work laying out an extensive system of tracks for the new station, and at the same time preparing for the completion of the electrifications of the entire division from New York to New Haven. The change from electric to steam locomotives on through trains will then be made at New Haven instead of at Stamford.

The construction of an immense roundhouse on the meadows between the tracks of the Hartford and Air Line divisions is already under way. This will eliminate the smoke nuisance from the present roundhouse in the center of the city.

Mr. Mellen and the directors are positive that electric power costs less than steam, but the auditors have not yet been able to prove it from the books of the company. The Westinghouse people claim that only half a unit is now being operated, namely, 34 miles from New York to Stamford. The electrification of the entire division of 74 miles from New York to New Haven will form a complete unit, it is said, which will result in a substantial saving in the cost of power.

It is expected that the electrical equipment from Stamford to New Haven will be installed at once on the completion of the new station here. Power for this zone will be supplied from a new plant to be erected on the water front, probably adjoining the present plant of the Connecticut Trolley Company.

The company is also planning for extensive additions to its freight terminal facilities in New Haven, having recently purchased land adjoining its present freight yard. A new freight house will be erected on this tract.

Along with these announcements comes the statement that the road's waterfront property near the present station will be used for a large pier and freight sheds for the steamers of the New England Navigation Company, running to New York. This arrangement will mean a saving in the transfer of freight from cars to boat and will also provide better connections for passengers. These steamers now land at Belle dock, a mile from the railroad station.

TAFT, DIX, GAYNOR TO DINE TOGETHER

NEW YORK—It is announced that President Taft, Governor Dix and Mayor Gaynor will sit down at the same table on the evening of Washington's birthday as guests of the Police Lieutenants Benevolent Association. It will be the fifth annual dinner of the association.

President Taft attended the dinner last year.

SIR FRANCIS GALTON PASSES AWAY

LONDON—Sir Francis Galton, noted explorer and writer, passed away on Tuesday. He explored Damaraland and South Oyampoland in 1850-52. For many years he was on the council of the Royal Geographical Society.

BRIGHAM WILL SUIT DOCKETED.

WASHINGTON—A suit over the will of Peter Bent Brigham, a former Boston capitalist, involving about $8,000,000 was docketed yesterday in the supreme court of the United States.

BUSINESS SOCIETIES OF PROVIDENCE TAKE STEPS FOR A MERGER

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Steps toward merging the Providence Board of Trade with other business organizations of the city are being taken by E. Tudor Gross and George H. Webb, the president and secretary.

President Gross in his annual report says that the board is not doing what it should and that the combination of all similar organizations is needed to bring about the desired results.

The fruit and produce men have already started an organization as a branch of the Board of Trade to be known as the Fruit and Produce Exchange. Steps have also been taken to encourage the formation of an exchange by the retail merchants of the city.

The board officials are preparing an act which is to be introduced into the Legislature this session to authorize every city and town in the state to appropriate money for advertising itself, its products and advantages, and for maintaining exhibits if it is so desired. The act will place a limit of $10,000 on the appropriations for each community.

TECH ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS PLAN LECTURE SERIES

Technology Electrical Engineering Society is in a thriving condition and it now has the enrolment of every senior in the electrical engineering course at the institute.

The program committee has engaged to address the society three past presidents of the American Electrical Engineers—Elihu Thomson, S. J. Sprague and C. E. Stott.

A program opens Feb. 1 with W. E. Fish of the General Electric Company; Feb. 4, Mr. Valentine of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company; March 10, Chief Engineer Murray of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad; March 20, Messrs. Philip and Goodnough; March 28, Paul Windsor; April (date undecided) S. J. Sprague, consulting engineer; May 9, Elihu Thomson.

The organization is at present investigating the question of a society pin. For the past two years it has had a pin of unique and significant design, but only a few of the members have been aware of its existence. Unusual interest is being shown in the society this year and in the near future a joint dinner of all the professional bodies at the institute will be planned.

HARVARD MEN SAIL TO HUNT FOR SUNKEN TREASURE, IS REPORT

NEW YORK—Four graduates of Harvard set sail from here yesterday on what is reported to be a search for sunken treasure.

Their schooner is the 95-footer Seneca, owned by Demarest Lloyd of Boston. The others in the party are John T. Cole, said to have been formerly an instructor of astronomy at Harvard; John B. Fallon, treasurer of a Boston spice company, and Arthur Coombs, formerly in the automobile business here.

Mr. Lloyd was asked if he was going to hunt for sunken treasure.

"We have the exact location of eight Spanish treasure ships that went down in 200 fathoms of water off the coast of Hayti," he acknowledged.

GLOUCESTER, Mass.—The Seneca is commanded by Capt. Thomas L. Somers, one of Gloucester's best known master mariners for many years, but who for several years has made his home in Somerville, Mass. His crew on the Seneca comprises Boston and Gloucester fishermen.

THE THEATRICAL WORLD

CHANTECLER INTONING HIS HYMN TO THE SUN.

The illustration pictures the novel barnyard setting of Act I. of Edmond Rostand's "Chantecler," which will be played Monday evening in New York with Miss Maude Adams in title role.

"CHANTECLER."

Why Miss Maude Adams is to appear in American production of famous Rostand play.

NEW YORK—Rostand's "Chantecler" is announced for its American premiere next Monday evening at the Knickerbocker theater, New York, with Miss Maude Adams in the title role.

Ever since Charles Frohman announced the rooster hero of Rostand's symbolical romance would be acted in America by the charming Lady Babbie of "The Little Minister" a prolonged chorus of disconsolate critics has arisen in the land.

"The idea," they cried, "of that delicate, sweet and plaintive woman, so utterly feminine, in a part which is the epitome of masculinity, a role in which masculinity alone makes the theme intelligible."

From one end of the country to the other the protests have gone, and everything possible, apparently, has been said against the possibility of Miss Adams giving an adequate or even interesting interpretation of the heroic cockerel before she has had opportunity to play the part, before in fact she or her representatives have had opportunity to state their side of the argument. Miss Adams' management has finally issued this statement in explanation:

"Taking Chantecler as a symbol of the typical individual bent upon forcing a living from the world, four phases of experience are represented in the play. In the first stage of his development Chantecler is strong and self-confident, because of his youth and because he is conscious only of himself and his impulse to sing, or to work. He is unconscious of enmities or slings, because he has not felt them. He is sure of himself or his song because he knows no other. He is in the world, but not of it.

"In the second and third phases come knowledge and human complications. Chantecler is in the world and of it. With knowledge come weakness, discouragement, defeat. He is in the complex bewildering atmosphere of adjustments. He loses his power over the world. He loses his faith in it. And he loses his song.

"Then he is seized by the impulse to flee from all falsities and complications that surround him. He hopes that somewhere beyond and away from all that has hurt and confused him he will find his song again.

"Thus, the final scenes of the play and the last phases of Chantecler are in the higher, remoter world of the forest. He finds his song again, only to learn that there are other and better songs; only to learn that his song is not essential in the way that he first believed. The sun rises, the world goes round, without him.

"At last his eyes are open to the sacredness of the primal impulse of work. His song is useful and necessary, not in the way he at first believed, but in another way. He cannot bring the light, but he can announce it to a world blinded with sleep. In the end he is strong and self-confident, on a higher plane. He knows his world. He knows himself.

"Humbler and greater, he goes back to his farmyard and to his daily task. Pride is gone. Experience and the sense of duty have taken its place. He will sing his song; he will do his work because it has been given him to do.

"The above, in a general way, is Rostand's representation, through the figure of Chantecler, of what he himself calls 'the drama of human endeavor grappling with life.' That being the fundamental idea of the play, determining the quality of its enaction throughout, does not the performance of its chief character call, not so much for the services of a man or of a woman, but rather for a high order of intelligence, for a particularly suitable interpreter of poetic fancy, noble sentiment and high ideals?

"These terms—a modern drama of poetic fancy, noble sentiment and high ideals—so surely as they spell 'Chantecler,' just as surely suggest the name of Miss Maude Adams. Her L'Aiglon, her Peter Pan, her Joan of Arc, her Rosalind—all bear witness to this fact.

"It is true that Rostand intended Coquelin to play the part. And Coquelin was an elderly, very male type of man; but it must also be remembered that Mme. Sarah Bernhardt missed securing the part only by a chance. And few will deny that had Mme. Bernhardt played 'Chantecler' in Paris, preceding Miss Maude Adams' appearance in the part in New York, as was the case with 'L'Aiglon,' there would now be as little criticism of a woman playing Chantecler as there was no criticism, when there was greater reason, for a woman appearing as the youth L'Aiglon.

"To Miss Maude Adams 'Chantecler' has never meant an opportunity of glorifying herself, but an obligation to undergo months of labor to the end of bringing a beautiful thing into fresh being.

"To Rostand, the author of this work, it has meant much to know that his work has been transfused through the mind of an artist, charged, as it were, with that very note of youth and heroic idealism which is the keynote of his play; refreshened by one who is a fountain, in herself, of the same quaint humor and exquisite fancy which are the attendant, ancillary qualities of his drama; a voice tuned by nature to be a mouthpiece of essential, self-seeking youth—heroic, yearning and inspiring.

"It is not only the 'copper-burnished' clarion quality of voice that had to be thought of in determining the interpreter of Chantecler, but the 'copper-burnished' clarion quality of mind as well."

Following is the complete cast of "Chantecler":

CHICAGO OPENINGS.

Holbrook Blinn begins an engagement next Monday evening at the Lyric in "The Boss," a new drama by Edward Sheldon. The play is somewhat on the order of Bronson Howard's "The Banker's Daughter," showing a girl marrying a man for saving her father financially, and afterward, when he is somewhat chastened, coming to care for him.

J. Forbes Robertson begins a limited run at the Garrick next Monday in Jerome's symbolic drama, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," recently described at length in this place.

Miss Margaret Anglin will present a new comedy called "Green Stockings" next Monday evening at the Grand Opera House. Miss Anglin impersonates an English spinster.

"Charley's Aunt" is next at the Imperial.

Miss Helen Ware begins an engagement Jan. 22 at the Whitney in an interesting picture of army life in western United States, in which Miss Ware figures as a government detective.

W. W. Andreef's balalaika orchestra will play a two weeks' engagement at the Blackstone beginning Jan. 22.

Louis Mann appears at McVickers next week in "The Cheater," a political comedy taken by him from the German.

An elaborate show from the New York Hippodrome will occupy the Auditorium beginning next week and for a limited period offer circus and dramatic spectacles.

BOSTON OPENINGS.

Next Monday evening at the Boston theater Arthur Hammerstein presents "The Maestro's Masterpiece," a new drama, by Edward Locke, with original numbers by Gaetano Merola. There will be vocal excerpts from the operas of Verdi, Ponchielli, Giordano, Offenbach, Donizetti, Massenet, Abt and Tschaikowski. The cast includes Mme. Maria Pampari, Miss Edith Somes, Miss Ethel Houston, Miss Helen Scholder, Samuel Schneier, Leonid Samoloff, Andrea Sarto, Frederick W. Peters, Count Enzo Bozanno, Angelo Soracco, and an orchestra of 55.

Miss Louise Gunning, a prima donna highly popular in Boston, comes to the Shubert Monday evening as star in "The Balkan Princess," a musical comedy that was much liked during its long London run.

William Crane is coming back to the Park in "U. S. Minister Bedloe," Mrs. Fiske and John Drew come soon to the Hollis in "Becky Sharpe" and Hamlet" is in preparation at the Castle Square.

Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth will give her annual course of readings at Steinert hall on Thursday afternoons at 3 o'clock, beginning Feb. 2, when she will read Maeterlinck's fairy play, "The Blue Bird." This reading will be in the nature of a children's matinee, as Mrs. Wentworth will offer it to children 10 years of age, as well as to "grownups."

At the Railway Terminals

The signal department of the Boston & Albany is getting out blue prints for a single track block system on the North Adams branch between Pittsfield and North Adams Junction.

James O. Halliday, superintendent of transportation of the New Haven, arrived at South station headquarters yesterday from Hot Springs, Ark.

Readville shops of New Haven road are equipping 12 standard mail cars with steel ends and furnishing them with new light effects, rack and hangers.

The Bangor & Aroostook railway private car, occupied by Vice-President Percy R. Todd and party will pass through Boston tonight en route from Washington, D. C., to Bangor, Me.

The mechanical department of the New Haven road is experimenting with a new steam hose coupling at suburban terminals for the purpose of reducing the number of delays caused by the old style couplers.

In order to obtain reliable adjustment on the eight-track draw-bridge at North station passenger yard the construction department of the terminal division is getting out large iron girders to replace the old wooden ones.

Navy Notes.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Another Dreadnought will be added to the American navy the latter part of March, when the first class battleship Utah, now nearing completion at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Company, at Camden, N. J., will be delivered to the government. She will be immediately placed in commission and sent to the New York navy yard for a few minor changes.

The full load displacement of the Utah is 23,033 tons. She will be the largest vessel afloat in the United States navy at the present time, although the battleships Wyoming, Arkansas, New York and Texas will be still more powerful when completed. The speed of the Utah will be 20¾ knots. The Florida, which is the sister ship of the Utah, is being built by the government at the New York navy yard, but is not quite so near completion as the Utah, being 86.67 per cent finished.

WASHINGTON—The eight submarine torpedo boats which were authorized at the last session of Congress have been named by Secretary Meyer. The new boats will be known by the following names: No. 28, Sea Wolf; No. 29, Nautilus; No. 30, Garfish; No. 31, Turbot; No. 32, Haddock; No. 33, Cachalot; No. 34, Arcai; No. 35, Walrus.

WASHINGTON—Pacific fleet is to be reorganized as follows: First division—The California (flag), the Maryland and the South Dakota. Second division—The West Virginia (flag), the Colorado and the Pennsylvania. The California is flagship of the fleet.

FACTORY HANDS TO LEARN ENGLISH

Foreigners in the larger Cambridge factories must attend school and learn to read, write and speak the English language or be dismissed, as a result of the work of the Y. M. C. A. with whom the officials of the factories are cooperating.

The Cambridge Y. M. C. A. has conducted educational classes for two noons a week at some of the factories. The officials of these factories then took up the subject, and decided that all men who could not read, write or speak the English language must attend these classes. Failure to do so was made cause for dismissal. In one factory 140 men have been enrolled under these conditions.

SHOW POSTAL BANKS A SUCCESS

WASHINGTON—The board of trustees of the postal savings-banks met Wednesday for the first time since the opening of the banks to examine the reports and determine upon the necessary appropriation which Congress will be requested to make at this session. So far the reports indicate that the banks will be a great success.

WHAT EDITORS ARE SAYING

THE editorial coments today deal with the decision of the Wellesley faculty to organize classes in spelling.

NEW YORK WORLD—Much pleasure must be felt by conservative people who hold the three R's in reverence to hear that classes in spelling and punctuation have been instituted at Wellesley College. After mature deliberation the faculty decided that a bachelor of arts should not have to resort to the subterfuge of putting the dot midway between i and e so it could belong to either.

UTICA (N. Y.) PRESS—There is scarcely anything else which marks persons as poorly educated so much as finding misspelled words in what they write. Unfortunately there are a good many men and women who count themselves well educated who are wretched spellers. It is scarcely permissible to misspel technical words in these days when dictionaries are so reasonable in price and so generally accessible.

PITTSBURG DESPATCH—Every one knows how flagrant are the conditions of which this Wellesley incident is only a surface indication. Business men know how poor in spelling are many stenographers. Sign painters need continual watching. Even the printer, whose daily vocation is spelling, frequently misspells. There is only one remedy for such a state of affairs, and that is to adopt the Wellesley plan. Insist upon thoroughness at every stage of the game.

SYRACUSE POST-STANDARD—The wide publicity Wellesley is giving the report that its students cannot spell and won't learn leads to the suspicion that the college is trying to get the profitable friendship of Andrew Carnegie.

NEW YORK TIMES—The days of the "spelling bee" are past, when every pupil learned by emulation the differences in the endings of "assessable" and collectible." The present generation of college women was taught to read before it learned the alphabet. They never learned to read letter by letter.

NEW HAVEN REGISTER—The institutions which need to take notice are those with whom spelling is a legitimate and important study. It is highly probable that the schools below the grammar grade are teaching spelling much more thoroughly than they did 10 years ago, but they need to keep up the good work. Some good spellers are born so, but they are scarce. The very great majority are made by hard work.

WESTERN DELEGATE SURPRISED AT TARIFF STAND OF THE EAST

Former Mayor of Minneapolis Says New England Forsees a Democratic President in 1912.

PREFER COMMISSION

WASHINGTON—"I was surprised to find New England taking a leading part in the work for a genuine tariff commission," said former Mayor William H. Eustis of Minneapolis, speaking of the recent tariff convention in this city. Mr. Eustis was one of the Minnesota delegates to the convention.

"To my mind New England foresees another Democratic victory in 1912, which will turn the presidency and both houses of Congress over to the Democrats, with their tariff-for-revenue ideas. Accordingly, it was determined to advocate the Taft proposition, hoping thus to make the work of enacting a tariff-for-revenue tariff law more difficult than otherwise would be the case."

The tone of the addresses made at the recent tariff convention in this city was very different from the resolutions adopted by the same convention at Indianapolis two years ago. The men who are back of these conventions have seen that it will not be possible to take the tariff question entirely out of politics and that Congress must in the future, as in the past, deal with it.

There appears to be some doubt as to whether Congress will pass the Longworth bill, which Mr. Taft has approved, or the Dalzell bill, which is more moderate in its provisions. Mr. Longworth is not in good standing with Speaker Cannon and the regular members of the ways and means committee. During the late campaign he was active against Mr. Cannon. If there is to be tariff commission legislation the present powers that be in the House do not want Mr. Longworth to have the credit for it. The Dalzell bill is the result.

That bill, it is believed, will, when before the House for final passage, be amended in certain respects so as to make it closely resemble the Longworth bill. The credit for the legislation will thus be taken over by the regulars. Mr. Taft, it is said, would be satisfied with the Longworth bill, the Dalzell bill, or anybody's else's bill, so long as it gave the tariff commission the requisite authority of investigation.

MUSIC TRADE MEMBERS HOLD ANNUAL DINNER

More than 100 guests attended the fifteenth annual dinner of the Boston Music Trade Association at the Exchange Club Wednesday evening. Charles R. Putnam presided and former Senator J. H. Soliday spoke against the new telephone rates. He said in part:

"To be told that we were entitled to a reduction and then to have our rates increased from three fifths to three quarters was adding insult to injury. The state is committed to the system of government by commissions, and in many cases they are right, but in this case they are not, as will be found when all adopt the new system. Then, I believe, we can make the highway commission see the right."

OFFICERS NAMED BY INSTITUTE

At the annual meeting of the corporation of the International Institute for Girls in Spain the following were elected: President, Charles M. Rutan; vice-president, Charles A. Hopkins; clerk, Samuel C. Darling; treasurer, Charles A. Haskell; directors, the officers and Samuel B. Capen, A. Lyman Williston, Mrs. A. Lyman Williston, the Misses Caroline Borden, Helen J. Sanborn, Katherine Lee Bates, Louise M. Hodgkins, Edwin Ginn and Miss Cornelia Warren.

ASKS GOV. FOSS TO GO ON CRUISE

Governor Foss and Adjutant-General Pearson, M. V. M., are invited to go aboard the cruiser Chicago this summer when that ship goes to sea with the naval reserves of Massachusetts for the annual summer cruise and practise.

Capt. Daniel Goodridge, commanding the M. V. M. naval reserves and the Chicago, has formally extended this invitation.

OATH TAKEN BY STATE OFFICERS

William M. Olin, secretary of the commonwealth; Elmer A. Stevens, treasurer; Henry E. Turner, auditor, and James M. Swift, attorney-general, took the oaths of office before the Governor and the executive council yesterday.

Mr. Swift succeeds Dana Malone, who has had five years of service as attorney-general. Mr. Olin is beginning his twenty-first year, Mr. Turner his eleventh [illegible] Stevens his second year in [illegible] offices.

Wakefield Man to Become an Aviator With Wright Brothers After Training

WILLIAM J. BATEMAN.

WAKEFIELD, Mass.—William J. Bateman of this town is to join the Wright brothers at their aeroplane factory as an engineer with the intention of becoming an aviator. Young Bateman's interest in mechanics was first aroused when he was a junior in the local high school.

He enrolled as a student in an evening automobile school and after graduating became a chauffeur. He is now considered an expert mechanician.

At the recent Squantum aviation meet Bateman's attention was turned to air navigation. He expressed his desire to become an aviator in the presence of a friend personally acquainted with the Wright brothers. The friend's recommendation brought a letter and Bateman expects to leave within a few days to enter the shops at Dayton, O.

CALLS NEUTRAL PANAMA CANAL A PEACEMAKER

Perpetual peace to the world would be insured by the close alliance of America and Great Britain, according to Frederick C. de Sumichrast, professor at Harvard University, speaking at the dinner of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club at Hotel Somerset last night.

"The International Peace Movemment" was the subject also of J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, former congressman. Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham and Mayor Fitzgerald spoke briefly. Alfred W. Donovan, president of the club, presided.

Letters of regret and indorsement of the peace movement from President Taft and Andrew Carnegie were read, and a letter congratulating Senator Lodge on his reelection was unanimously indorsed by the members present.

Professor de Sumichrast took the ground that the Panama canal should never be fortified and urged that the American people declare themselves for an arbitration agreement with Great Britain and give the world a pledge of amity and confidence by neutralizing the canal.

HARVARD CHOOSES CHICAGO LAWYER FOR ITS MARSHAL

William C. Boyden, a Chicago lawyer, Harvard class of '86, has been chosen to be chief marshal at Harvard University on commencement day in June.

He has been selected in accordance with the custom to have the commencement marshal a member of the class that has been out of college just 25 years.

Mr. Boyden was a prominent member of his class in his undergraduate days. He was graduated from the law school in 1889 and immediately took up the practise of his profession in Chicago, where he is now recognized as one of the leaders at the bar.

MAGNETS TO RAISE SUNKEN TORPEDOES

Raising torpedoes from the bottom of the sea by means of powerful magnets is now proposed by the navy department. Tests have been completed on the Mississippi river in which a powerful electric magnet raised a cargo of nails from the bottom of the rver.

Orders have been issued to all navy yards and ships to mark all torpedo locations with gas buoys. Electro magnets will be sent to recover the expensive projectiles. It is believed that the buoyancy of the torpedo will make the act of raising a simple one.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO GOVERN TOWN

CANTON, N. C.—Mayor Custis has turned the control of the town over to the Prohibitionists, asking them to show how the North Carolina prohibition laws can be enforced.

He has cited two ministers and a number of laymen to be sworn in as special policemen. The action is a sequel to a strong prohibition lecture delivered by Judge J. C. Pritchard, formerly United States senator, following a temperance revival.

PLANS FOR NEW TUGS.

Specifications for four new harbor and bay tugs have been prepared by the new owners of the Boston Towboat Company, the New England Coke & Coal Company. The boats will have all the latest improvements.

STATE TREASURER IS ARRESTED.

BISMARK, N. D.—The retiring state treasurer of North Dakota, G. L. Bickford, was arrested Wednesday afternoon, charged with the misappropriation from the state of a sum said to be about $74,000.

CHILDREN SAVED BY MARCHING.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Falling into line at the sound of the alarm, 150 children marched from St. Joseph's Institute Wednesday night and escaped uninjured from the flames which destroyed the main building and dormitory, causing a loss of $75,000.

GLASGOW TO HAVE SHOW.

GLASGOW — Arrangements for the great Glasgow exposition of 1911 are beginning to take definite shape, and the site of 30 acres in Kelvingrove park, within a mile of the center of the city, will be the scene of an interesting and successful show. The scheme falls into four great sections—national history, modern fine art, industry and entertainment.

TEA FOR MRS. FOSS.

WASHINGTON—Mrs. George E. Foss, wife of Representative Foss, has issued invitations for Jan. 30, in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Eugene N. Foss, wife of the Governor of Massachusetts.

RESCUED BY HUMAN CHAIN.

PATCHOGUE, L. I.—By forming a human chain of 15 links, a band of boys and girls saved Ethlyn Philips from Lake Patchogue Wednesday.

BUTTE MINES RESUMING.

BUTTE, Mont.—As the risk from the fire in the High Ore mine appears to have passed, work has been resumed in the North Butte mines and the Bell and Diamond also will be in condition for operation after slight repairs.

GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS APPEALS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—George Fred Williams, the Massachusetts lawyer, was ordered by the supreme court of Rhode Island to purge himself of contempt of court by turning over $5000 from the estate of Mrs. Amy F. Starkweather, of which he was executor, to the administrator. Instead of turning over the money he has taken out a writ of error to the United States supreme court.

REPAIR CAMBRIDGE GAS MAIN.

Workmen finished repairs this forenoon on the gas main which burst on Massachusetts avenue near Clinton street, Cambridge Wednesday evening. Before night, it is said, the street will be filled in again. The escaping gas ignited and illuminated the district for a considerable distance.

BAY STATE D. A. R. CANDIDATE.

Mrs. Herbert E. Davidson, vice-regent of the Massachusetts D. A. R., will be presented as the candidate for Massachusetts vice-president-general of the D. A. R., at the Continental Congress in Washington in April.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY CLEARED.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Charges of failure of duty made by Sidney J. Cowen of New York city against Charles S. Whitman, district attorney, were dismissed by Governor Dix Wednesday.

FIRE IN BRIGHTON HOUSE.

Michael Haverty rescued eight persons today from a fire on the second floor of a two and a half story wooden dwelling of which he is an occupant, at 19 and 21 Etna street, Brighton. He was awakened by the smoke. The fire had started from an overheated furnace and caused a loss of $2000 before it was extinguished.

BOSTON WELLESLEY CLUB PREPARING PLAY

MISS ALICE LEAVITT.
Graduate of Wellesley, who is studying for opera, and will take two parts.

One of the most picturesque and artistic amateur plays ever presented in Boston is promised by the Boston Wellesley College Club Friday evening and Saturday afternoon in Jordan hall.

Preparations conclude with the dress rehearsal at Jordan hall today. The members of the cast in the play, "The Spanish Gypsy," have in many cases had leading parts in former Wellesley College plays.

The proceeds of the play will be added to the students' building fund, which the college students and alumni have been working for during the past two years. Of the necessary $100,000 required, $12,000 has thus far been raised.

The play is a version of George Eliot's work of that name, revised by Mrs. Christabel W. Kidder. Miss Mildred Robinson and Miss Carol Sawyer.

The work of preparing the play for presentation has been under the general management of Miss Alice H. Stockwell.

MISS LILLIAN DROUET.
Who takes leading part of Fedalma in "The Spanish Gypsy."

HARVARD "CRIMSON" APPLAUDS CHANGES IN ENTRANCE TESTS

New admission requirements at Harvard University adopted by the faculty are declared by the Harvard Crimson today to be the adequate solution of a serious state of affairs.

The new requirements show a radical departure from the present ones, and before adoption must be passed by the corporation.

Under the proposed requirements, the "point system," now in use will ultimately give place to what may be called a "merit system," in which the candidate for admission will be required to pass only four examinations in general subjects.

His record in the secondary school will be submitted by the principal, and on this record and his examination marks the final decision of the college entrance authorities will be made.

For the present either the old system or the new can be used, at the option of the separate schools.

The new scheme has five main parts which may be roughly stated as:

1—Credentials.
2—Examination in four subjects.
3—Character and marking of examination papers.
4—Satisfactory record.
5—Administration of the new plan.

"The requirements for admission at the present time are of such a nature as to practically necessitate a school course expressly planned for the Harvard examinations," says the Crimson.

This involves great hardship for many boys in high schools which necessarily shape their courses of study for the great majority who have no idea of going to college.

"In short, as a result of the specialized character of the preparation for college, numbers of desirable boys have been excluded from entering the university.

"This state of things will be remedied by the new plan, which prepares a straight way into the college for every student who has creditably completed a four year high school course.

Under the present admission requirements, practically all the necessary work must be done in the last two years. The consequence is that the sub-freshman is frequently forced to carry six or seven studies.

"The new plan relieves this congestion by limiting the number of examinations to four.

"The new scheme will increase the representative in college from the country at large.

"It will serve to bring the university in closer touch with the whole public school system, and should prove a benefit both to the high schools and to Harvard."

SELECTS CINCINNATI FOR 1913 COUNCIL OF AMERICAN HEBREWS

NEW YORK—Cincinnati has been selected as the place for the next conference, in 1913, by the council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

At the council dinner here last night addresses were made by Theodore Roosevelt, the guest of honor, Mayor Gaynor, Oscar Straus, Dr. David Phillipson of Cincinnati and Jacob H. Schiff, who also acted as toastmaster.

President Taft sent the following telegram from the White House:

"I greatly regret my inability to attend the banquet. I should like to be able to testify in my speech to my admiration for the Jewish people, my conviction that they constitute a valuable element in our American citizenship, and make most effectively for artistic improvement, educational progress, the extension of charity and the maintenance of law and order."

JOHN R. VOORHIS CONFIRMED.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Senate has confirmed the nomination of John R. Voorhis of New York city to be state superintendent of elections.

CALL ON CHURCHES FOR 5000 VOICES FOR MISSIONARY PAGEANT

Incidents in African and Asiatic history will be depicted in the pageant of "Darkness and Light," which will be given in connection with "the World in Boston," the missionary exposition to be held in the Mechanics building from April 24 to May 20.

A call has gone out to the churches of Boston and vicinity for 5000 choristers to present the pageant.

The pageant of "Darkness and Light" is a spectacular representation of incidents in the history of missions. Five episodes will be presented. The episode of the North represents a camp of American Indians in the far northwest, and the episode of the South is laid in Africa.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Committees representing the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the Metropolitan Telephone Association have issued a call for a joint meeting to be held in room 448, Old South building, Thursday afternoon, Jan. 26, at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of perfecting a thoroughly representative organization to actively bppose the enforcement of the new rates of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company. In the near future a mass meeting will be called to consider this question. Charles M. Conant is chairman of the committee on telephone rates.

SALE MEANS BUILDING IN FUTURE.

A South Boston sale which will probably mean the ultimate erection of modern manufacturing and warehouse building is that whereby Charles S. Judkins of the Minot building has purchased from Robert M. Morse and Augustus P. Loring, trustees, the waterfront lot containing about 225,000 square feet of land, fronting on First street and Farragut road and continuing out to the reserved channel. The assessed valuation is $6500.

IN OUTLYING WARDS.

In Roxbury a tract of 22,993 feet of land on Maywood street, near Blue Hill avenue, rated by the assessors at $6800, has been sold by the estate of Henry W. Mansur to Santa Varnerin and another.

Two frame houses and 10,000 feet of land on Highland, near High street, Dorchester, have been sold by Richard C. Humphrey, trustee, to Christian H. Lytthans. Of the total rating of $8500 the land carries $2500.

Lewis J. Ward has purchased from Charles W. Prescott a lot containing 10,678 feet of land on Fessenden, near Norfolk street, Dorchester. It is taxed on $1100.

Frank V. Noyes & Co. of Charlestown have sold for Sarah J. Colburn her frame dwelling and 5497 feet of land at 24 Liberty avenue, corner of Mallet street, Somerville, overlooking Powder House park. The estate is assessed on a valuation of $5700. Thomas J. Laven buys for a home.

NEW FACTORY IN MALDEN.

One of the most important of recent real estate improvements in Malden will be the erection of a three-story concrete factory on Jackson street by the Yale Knitting Company. This concern has also purchased the two large factory buildings, beside the business of the Holmes Knitting Company. The new factory will be begun in April and will probably be completed by July 1. The estimated cost is $40,000.

NEW WATERFRONT FACTORY.

East Boston's first waterfront factory building, a seven-story concrete structure with 280,000 square feet of floor space, within a stone's throw of the North ferry, will be erected this summer by the incorporators of the newly-formed Boston Cold Storage & Terminal Company. Ground will be broken within two months, they say, and the building will be ready for occupancy in the fall. Space has been reserved already by a shoe manufacturer whose name is withheld for the present.

The company, a Massachusetts concern capitalized for $1,750,000, was formed to develop the nine acres of land and docks on New street, at the junction of Border. Wendell F. Brown, principal owner of the property, is head of the development concern. Other incorporators are Jeremiah Campbell, J. F. Rowe and D. Lockwood.

The factory site is now occupied by four vacant buildings which will be razed. The wharves have a number of tenants, nearly all of whom are engaged in the curing and canning of fish. None of them will be disturbed. The only immediate dock improvement contemplated is the building of a car float by which the factory product may find easy water shipment.

The parcel in question comprises the properties of the Traders Wharf & Warehouse Company, the Eastern Wharf & Warehouse Company, the Pickert wharf and the Weeks wharf, and is separated from the North ferry slip only by the docks of the Staples Coal Company.

The shore line is about 1200 feet and the dock frontage nearly three-fourths of a mile. The property is valued at $820,000 by the assessors, $570,000 of which is charged against the land.

The incorporators say that they feel sure that factories on the waterfront will prove as profitable in this city as in Brussels and other European ports where the plan has been highly developed.

NOVEL TILE CONSTRUCTION.

A new hollow tile floor construction, designed to overcome the disadvantages of the present method of using tiles, is being introduced for the first time in New York. The system consists of square blocks, with flanges laid so that a channel runs between each pair of blocks, both lengthwise and crosswise of the building. In these channels are fixed steel rods, which are in turn covered with concrete. By the process the blocks form their own molds and a series of reinforced concrete beams are formed into one solid piece. On the ceiling side the flanges come together, so that the plaster may be affixed directly to the tiles. This makes a floor which, it is claimed, will carry a load equal to the ordinary concrete beam, hollow tile floor of nearly twice its thickness.

SUPPLY OF COTTON IN THE U. S. DROPPED 20 PER CENT IN 1910

WASHINGTON—The supply of cotton in the United States for the year ending Aug. 31, 1910, was 12,188,021 bales, a decrease of 20 per cent under the previous year, when the supply amounted to 15,312,885 bales.

This decline apparently measures the difference between an adequate supply and one insufficient for the normal demand. The loss of 3,124,864 bales in the supply of cotton for 1910 is practically equal to the difference betwen the 1909 and 1908 cotton crops of the United States. Although the production of cotton in India last year was about 650,000 bales in excess of that of the previous year, nearly all of this increase was required to offset the loss in the crops of Egypt and of other foreign countries.

These and other facts are contained in census bulletin No. 110 to be issued soon by Census Director Durand.

During the first six months the improved condition of the cotton manufacturing industry is shown by the fact that the consumption was 2,539,399 bales, compared with 2,259,454 bales during the following six months. An analysis of these figures shows that the decrease in the consumption in the latter period was general, amounting to 14 per cent for the cotton growing states and 8 per cent for the New England states.

A significant feature of the report is the growth shown in the manufacturing industry in the cotton growing states since 1880. There were in these states 20 years ago only 561,360 active spindles, which consumed 188,748 bales of cotton. In 1910 there were 10,801,494 active spindles consuming 2,292,333 bales of cotton.

The quantity of domestic raw cotton exported during the year ending Aug. 31, 1910, amounted to 6,339,028 running bales eqivalent to 6,484,429 bales of 500 pounds each, valued at $460,868,020. Of this cotton 38 per cent went to the United Kingdom, 30 per cent to Germany and 15 per cent to France; these three countries taking 83 per cent, or about five sixths, of the total quantity exported. The decrease of 26 per cent in the quantity of cotton exported this year, as compared with 1909, is evenly distributed among the several countries.

REMOVES STURGIS BOARD IN MAINE

AUGUSTA, Me.—Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted issued letters removing Andrew Havey of Sullivan, Henry W. Oakes of Auburn and George M. Phoenix of Alfred from office as enforcement commissioners last night.

The Sturgis law, providing for the enforcement of the prohibitory law by state deputies in counties where county officials have been derelict in their duties, becomes inoperative so far as this administration is concerned.

A bill is pending in the Legislature which provides for the repeal of the law itself.

MOVE TO INSURE MILTON CONCERTS

Milton Education Society's concerts in past years have been of so much educational and recreational value that it has been decided to take steps to insure their permanent continuance. The society has therefore been incorporated and is now legally qualified to hold property.

An endowment fund is to be raised, the income of which will be large enough to cover the yearly deficit on the concerts. The society will give an extra concert in aid of this fund in the town hall Jan. 24.

The artist will be Alexander Heinemann.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

DRESS FOR SCHOOL WEAR

Made to go with guimpe, easily laundered.

DRESSES worn with a guimpe are much more practical for school wear than those having a yoke and undersleeves attached to the body of the dress. Children usually find it a hard task to keep their sleeves clean, and with a little over-blouse dress it is a simple matter to have the guimpe laundered, while cleaning a lace yoke is always difficult. The dress shown in the accompanying illustration, Ladies Home Journal pattern, No. 5355, is a simple little design and an easy one for the home dressmaker to make.

There is a panel front and back, though at the center back there is a seam which extends to the lower edge of the skirt. The side-front and side-back of the waist are cut in one with the cap-sleeve and the side sections of the skirt have an inverted box-plait at the underarm. The dress is made with a low square neck and the guimpe with high neck and full length sleeves. For a serviceable dress navy blue French serge would be suitable, with the trimming of blue silk Hercules braid to match, and worn with a guimpe of allover embroidery.

The pattern is cut only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. For the dress, size 8 years requires 3¼ yards 27-inch, 2⅜ yards 36-inch or 2¼ yards 44-inch material without up and down, and , yards of braid. The guimpe requires 1¾ yards 27-inch or 1¼ yards 36-inch material without up and down.

CHINTZ GOOD FOR A BED COVER

THE best cover for a bed in a small room is a chintz that will correspond as nearly as possible to the wall paper, that the bed may merge into the wall and not seem to take three times the amount of space that it naturally should do. If the wall paper is white with a flowered border and chintz curtains adorn the windows, then the bedspread may also be of white with a band of chintz as a border. Many small bedrooms now have a flower paper of English or colonial design with small inconspicuous floral pattern. Most of these papers are imitated in chintz, so that it is possible to make an extremely pretty bedspread in cretonne that will make the bed scarcely noticeable in the room. If the wall is a solid color, the spread should be of corresponding shade in cotton taffeta or whatever material can be found of correct color.

To make a bedspread is a simple matter. Most cretonnes are just the width of an ordinary single bed, so that it is only necessary to place one strip of the material the length of the bed for the centerpiece and then to join the side pieces or valance either in gathers or box plaits. Openings, of course, must be left for the post at each corner.

If preferred, the top piece can be made of two strips joined down the center and fitted down over the edge of the mattress to the actual frame of the bed, where the full valance is then added. This will perhaps look neater, but it calls for more work in the making. In most small rooms the bed must always be placed with an end and a side against the wall, so that in buying the chintz it is only necessary to allow for one end and one side.

There must always be a roll for the head of the bed, and this can be bought at any department store. It should be hollow and open at one side to allow of all pillows being kept in it by day. This roll is covered with chintz like the rest of the bed, the material either glued to the papier mache, of which the roll is made, or else made like a slip cover open at one side to allow of the pillows being tucked in each morning. The ends should be gathered and firmly stitched and then formed into a large, soft rosette.

If white is preferred for the bed, there are numberless pretty covers to be procured, some of lace to be placed over a foundation of white or colored sateen. Others of gayly flowered muslin that are inexpensive can be laundered, and are extremely pretty in a room of any color scheme. One lace curtain can often be transformed into an exceedingly pretty bedspread, and an extra piece of net can always be purchased from which to make the cover for the pillow roll.

It is said that white iron bedsteads are soon to be more fashionable than the long popular brass, and that the new bedsteads should show as little framework as possible. For a small room this is of greatest advantage.

In planning and arranging for the bed, one of the long flat wicker boxes made on rollers to slide underneath on the floor should certainly be provided. Only one who has lived in a small room with insufficient closet space knows the discomfort of innumerable bandboxes kept for want of other place beneath the bed. One of these boxes is sufficiently large to contain the waists and furs or all the undergarments, and is as easily pulled in and out as a bureau drawer. A similar box of different shape can answer the double purpose of window seat, taking the place of another chair, and be a shoe and slipper box as well.—New York Herald.

TALKING OF THE SPRING STYLES

Little change from present modes is expected.

WE Americans are so progressive that the talk already is of spring fashions. The shops and dressmakers are getting ready for the warm weather, and they are also exploiting new fashions for the choice of the fortunate ones who are going South for Lenten days.

Nothing very new is promised at this date. The designers say that they are quite willing to have things rest until next summer, because they have just mastered the intricacies of the prevailing styles, and they see wide possibilities of improvement and modification.

There is little talk of the decided change from black and white. That it will last is the opinion of those who should know. It has proved a successful follower of vivid colors, and the artists in the profession have developed a wonderful way of putting crude colors against this combination that has made many a gown lovely.

The improvement over the old-time method of relieving black and white is to introduce Egyptian and oriental colors with it. Heretofore designers have used pastel shades in conventional application. Pale pink and blue, lavender and canary yellow were the tones chosen to touch up and bring into relief the white and the black. Today these tones would not be considered. Vivid red, Chinese and cobalt blue, orange yellow, purple, and grass green are among some of the colors chosen for black and white gowns.

These are made possible by the present method of veiling a color. It is now applied to the underslip, and does not appear as an addition to the outer covering.

A black and white gown, for instance, at once receives attention when the upper bodice shows under its black chiffon slip a mosaic of gold lace, colored crystal, scarlet velvet and Chinese blue satin. When a white chiffon cloth bodice is used instead of a black one, it often veils a Maltese cross of silver lace sewed with turquoise beads, Mandarin yellow velvet and circles of turquoise blue satin.

Both moire and heavy satin are brought out in coat suits for those who are going to spend the rest of the winter in warmer climates. Paris started this idea before Christmas for its smart women who were going to Egypt and Nice, and America is taking it up for those who go to Aiken, Augusta and Palm Beach.

The fashion is an effective one and also not extravagant. These suits can be used through spring and summer. It may be that satin will take the place of pongee, rajah, soft silk and other such fabrics for warm weather coat suits.

So far, black satin is the only color used, but in moire one sees suits of copper brown, dark blue and myrtle green, all trimmed with black. The moire is not the stiff weave that we used to call by that name, and which was so well imitated in a cotton quality that it lost its vogue; it is an admirable texture with the softness of satin and the faint watering that is artistic.

The satin is not messaline nor meteor. It is somewhat heavier, although it has the suppleness of the other weaves. It is more like the satin we used to wear, for which we paid a good price and expected to get good service. The suits of both are made much the same way—short, slim coats, single breasted, turnover collars, a velvet band at the hem, on sleeves and at the foot of the narrow skirt.

Some of the skirts show a gusset of velvet let in the two side seams half way to the hips from the hem. Again the gusset is only on the left side. It is not trimmed with braid and buttons, but left severely alone to give the impression of being a panel under a slashed directoire skirt.

More ornamental suits in the black satin are made with a kind of directoire coat, which is not new, but remains unusual and quite smart.

Black and white furs have taken on as much fashion as other black and white fabrics. Small strips of ermine go a long way toward making black fur effective, and some of the best sets have half-inch bands on the edge of the darker pelt.—Anne Rittenhouse in New York Times.

SUMMERY HATS FOR THE SOUTH

VERY summery looking are the straw and lingerie hats for the fortunate ones who may flit Floridaward for the rest of the winter, says the Philadelphia Times.

Immense hats, whose widespreading brims might almost take the place of a parasol; smart little walking hats which fit the head closely and all the in-between sizes and shapes are shown.

The more expensive hats as a rule are made of the popular hemp straw in white and natural ecru. Plumes are just about holding their own, the chief trimming being a simple but dainty little wreath of flowers, a bow of velvet ribbon, a quill or a smart buckle.

The majority of the morning or walking hats are of loosely woven straw, hand sewed on a wire frame, and these also, are simply trimmed.

But the lingerie hat is the most appropriate which madame will buy for her Palm Beach toilette. There are lovely little hats of fine valenciennes edging, gathered on a wire frame covered with net and daintily trimmed with a wreath of satin rosebuds and leaves.

Enamel Finish

Whenever you want to apply an enamel finish, lightly rub with a medium grade of sandpaper. There are several liquid paint and varnish removers on the market if the old paint is in a bad condition. Many women are able and have the time to give the finish in a room a coat of enamel paint, says the Racine Journal. Dust and dirt do not adhere to this finish, and it is a great labor saver as well as a delight to the eye.

HOME HELPS

RUBBING flannels and knitted articles, such as sweaters, on a washboard, hardens and toughens them; the resin contained in some yellow soaps does the same thing.

In slicing bacon, always place the rind side down. Do not try to cut through the rind, but when a sufficient number of slices are cut, slip the knife under them, keeping it as close as possible to the rind.

To keep a pencil drawing from blurring dip it gently in quite fresh milk and dry on a smooth hard surface, face up.

* * *

If your rugs curl up at the edges, they can be made to lie flat by dampening the curled edge and pressing with a hot iron.

To avoid scraping new potatoes, boil them in their skins until tender, then skin and put back in the steamer for a few minutes to dry out.—Racine Journal.

Putting on Silk Gloves

In trying on silk gloves, cover the hands well with talcum and you will not tear the gloves, says the Racine Journal. If a seam rips, do not whip it over and over. Turn the glove, catch one side of the torn part and then the opposite, going back and forth, and the work will not rip out. No not knot the thread. Mend a "run" in a similar manner.

TRIED RECIPES

OYSTER SOUP.

ONE quart of oysters without their shells, a quart of milk, two ounces of butter, half a pint of water, seasoning of pepper and salt. Heat the liquor from the oysters with the water, and when near boiling add the milk, stirring all the time, next add the seasoning to taste, and when the soup is just to the boil, the oysters. Stew these for about five minutes, then put in the butter, and stir till this is melted. Serve with fried croutons. Sufficient for six persons.—Memphis Scimitar.

NOVEL BAKED EGGS.

Cut small slices of bread, one inch and a half in thickness, stamp them in rounds about three inches in diameter, and stamp out the middle with a small cutter so as to make rings. Fry these in butter a nice brown, arrange on a dish, break one egg into each, sprinkle with pepper, salt and chopped parsley, and lay a dab of butter on each. Stand in oven till eggs are set, and serve on same dish with a border of watercress.—Montreal Star.

CREAMED SPINACH.

Needed: Two pailfuls of spinach, two tablespoonfuls of salt, two ounces of butter, eight tablespoonfuls of cream, one small teaspoonful of pounded sugar, a very little grated nutmeg. Boil and drain the spinach, chop it finely, and put it into a stewpan with the butter; stir over a gentle fire, and when the butter has dried away add the remaining ingredients, and simmer for about five minutes. Boil the cream before adding, or it may curdle. Serve on a hot dish, and garnish either with sippets of toasted bread or leaves of puff paste.—Philadelphia Times.

RAISED MUFFINS.

Mix one cup each of boiling water and scalded milk, one rounding tablespoon each of butter and sugar and one level teaspoon of salt. Cool until lukewarm, add one third yeast cake, four cups of sifted bread flour and one beaten egg. Cover and let rise over night, when the dough should have doubled in bulk. Butter some muffin pans, fill half full with the risen dough, and let stand until even full, then bake.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

INDIAN PUDDING.

Heat three cupfuls of milk in a double boiler, and stir in three quarters cupful of cornmeal mixed with one cupful of cold milk. Add three quarters cupful of seeded raisins, and cook in a boiler an hour, stirring occasionally. Add three even tablespoonfuls of butter, one even teaspoonful of salt, one half cupful of molasses and four cupfuls of cold milk. Pour into a liberally buttered baking dish, and bake slowly three hours. Do not cut short the time of baking, and half an hour more will improve the pudding. — Ladies Home Journal.

ARTICLES THAT YOUR GIRLS AND BOYS CAN MAKE

THE children often come to you and ask for something to do—something to make; for a child's ideas are always creative.

A wall matchholder can be made on a foundation of cardboard cut out in a diamond, the upper portion of which is much larger than the lower. Fold the two lower ends upward so as to form a pocket and cover the whole with silk or any bright colored fabric. Then bind with heavy cord and attach a ring to hang it up by.

A hanging pincushion is also easily made, says the Philadelphia North American. Cut out two squares, about five or six inches square, from bristolboard and cover one with figured material and one with plain. Sew them together and then bend the square thus formed into a cornucopia shape, with the plain side as the lining. Bind with cord and leave a loop to hang by. Fill with absorbent cotton or with bran all the way to the top and sew silk tightly over it. Cotton is better, as bran is rather heavy.

A button penwiper may be made by cutting a circle of bright-colored silk, buttonholed to cardboard or cartridge paper, and then several other circles of chamois a bit smaller. Fasten all together with a large ornamental button. Even the smallest child can make this.

A simple footstool should be made of a strong wooden box with the lid nailed firmly down. Screw on small casters and pad the top of the box. Cover with coarse canvas. Now cut out a piece of brocade in the shape of a cross and large enough to cover the tops and sides of the box after padding. Nail this down and finish off the edges by furniture gimp held down by tiny brass tacks. This is something for the boys to make.

EMBROIDERED SMOCKING ON GIRLS' FROCKS

EMBROIDERED smocking is one of the prettiest trimmings possible for children's frocks, and indeed is lovely on a blouse for wear with the tailored suit, especially when the smocking is done in colors on white material.

Any one who can embroider can learn to do this smocking, which is carried out in various shades with marking cotton whenever fulness is needed.

The material is shirred first. Then on this shirring is worked the design in the heavy thread.

Any embroidery stitch may be used, the outline stitch, for instance, being used by taking one stitch on each plait of the shirring, says the Philadelphia Times.

Smocking takes up materials from three and a half to four times, depending on the texture and size of stitch used for gathering on the machine.

The learner is advised to use a small piece of corded dimity, nine cords to the inch, using your sewing machine for stitching the lines and the presser foot as the guide and spacer.

When stitching with thread one can mark the entire piece before the gathering is begun, but if no thread is used one must stitch one row, then gather and repeat, as the impression of a needle would be obliterated in handling the work.

When the rows are stitched, one removes the thread as the gathering goes on.

Gather from right to left, securing the knot carefully, and when all is gathered and drawn up, tie the gathering threads by twos.

Have the plaits even and pull gently into place.

COMPANY AT SUNDAY SUPPER

Informal affair is very enjoyable.

IN some homes the Sunday supper is the company event of the week, and as an informal affair of this kind is far easier for the maid, the hostess and generally the guests enjoy it more than an attempt at an elaborate dinner.

The table can be just as attractive and the menu just as tempting as for a dinner. As the Sunday midday meal is usually late, 7:30 or 8 o'clock is a popular hour for supper, says the New York Tribune. The maid generally arranges the table before she goes out, though frequently the hostess sees to it herself. A pretty buttonholed and monogramed luncheon cloth, a filet lace runner with square plate doilies, or a round centerpiece of Madeira lace with the matching plate and tumbler doilies, are the thing for the Sunday tea. For informal meals the silver and glass coasters are used, and they protect the polished table. It is not a bad idea to dispense with flowers and use as a centerpiece a silver bowl of nuts or a small Sheffield tray with a pretty arrangement of assorted fruits, which many times is the only dessert served.

There are numerous good menus to choose from for a Sunday supper, though most hostesses have a special menu which the maid has learned to prepare satisfactorily. Every Sunday night during the winter at one house cold roast duck, apple sauce, grapefruit and mayonnaise salad, cheese, nut bread, sandwiches and chocolate constitute the supper. Another hostess makes a specialty of her potato salad, which she never serves except for Sunday suppers. With the cubes of potato and a generous quantity of oil dressing she uses a can of French peas, chopped nut meats, boiled eggs and a garnish of pimentoes and lettuce. With this she serves cold tongue with a tomato sauce, or a whole boiled ham with a hot India relish, buttered slices of brown and white bread.

Cold sliced chicken, with a border of hard boiled eggs dipped in chopped pickle around the platter, scalloped potatoes, tomato salad, jelly, cottage cheese and hot buttered rolls make another good combination. In some homes Welsh rabbit, lobster Newburg or creamed chicken made in the chafing dish, assorted sandwiches and olives constitute the evening meal. If one cares to serve a dessert other than fruit and nuts, individual pumpkin or apple pies with a thin disk of cream cheese laid on top, would surely please.

THE

CORRECT WRITING PAPER

Crane's Linen Lawn

FOR over a hundred years Crane's writing papers have been the first choice of all good letter-writers, and there were many good letter-writers in the old days of this country. Many a box of old letters, penned by a famous hand, were written upon Crane's writing papers.

Behind every sheet of Crane's Linen Lawn today there is an experience of one hundred years in good paper-making. No wonder that the Crane writing papers are preeminent today as they have been during the entire hundred years.

Crane's Linen Lawn is a writing paper of unusual quality and unusual popularity. Besides the white, it is made in many fashionable shades.

SPECIAL FRENCH BORDERS.

Crane's Linen Lawn has been made up in a variety of combinations of French borders to produce many beautiful results. These are of several kinds:

First, a narrow border of color, deepening but harmonizing with the color of the paper.

Second, this border in color in combination with a gold bevel edge.

Third, the gold bevel edge alone.

Fourth, a narrow band of two colors with or without the gold bevel edge.

These colored borders and French borders, made up in the various fashionable colors of Crane's Linen Lawn, and also in the white, give a great variety of interesting combinations and supply just the right touch of novelty for those who prefer such things.

A variety of uses is suggested by these novelties in addition to correspondence paper, such as place cards, invitations to dances, parties and the like.

Crane's Linen Lawn is the most fashionable paper in any form in which it appears.

If your stationer cannot supply Crane's Linen Lawn, write to us, and we will send the name of a dealer who can.

Don't "Boil" Clothes

Never "boil" clothes. To do so makes them yellow, says the Racine Journal. Instead, prepare a boiling hot suds and pour this over them. Wash through this by hand, rinse and blue, and they will be white—and you will have no steamed-up house.

Gay Trimming

Rich black dresses are very often relieved by gay Bulgarian or oriental embroidery, says the Philadelphia Times. A collar or little guimpe of lace, and again handsome silk braid is the trimming and little gold buttons relieve the black.

Improved Pie Pan

The improved pie pan has a blade fastened to the center, which revolves around the bottom of the dish beneath the pie crust when the end protruding from the side of the dish is moved.—Racine Journal.

Roomy Opera Bag

The newest opera bag is roomy—large enough for handkerchiefs, tickets, money and a number of other things without looking stuffed.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

For Sticky Leather

If leather in chair seats sticks to the clothing, sponge with a mixture of ether and alcohol, dampening the cloth lightly and following it by wiping off with a clean flannel dampened with pure chloroform. The varnish was badly done or it would not stick.—Racine Journal.

To Prevent Tarnish

Silver jewelry tarnishes so quickly that the cleaning of it sometimes becomes a nuisance, and if there are precious stones in the article it is especially hard to clean.

A piece of gum camphor kept in the jewel case will prevent tarnish. Cut and frosted silver may be washed in hot soda water and immediately dried.—Philadelphia Times.

SENATOR TREADWAY TALKS TO LUNCHEON CLUB ON LEGISLATION

An expression of approval for the direct election of United States senators in this state, for the principle of arbitration in labor disputes, for state support for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and for the immediate submission to the Legislature of an employees' liability and compensation act was made by Allen T. Treadway, president of the Massachusetts Senate, speaking at the monthly dinner of the Luncheon Club at the Revere house last night.

Senator Treadway said in part:

"Today the Legislature of Massachusetts has made history. A few hours ago it was my privilege as president of the Senate to declare that Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant had received a majority of the votes of the members of the Legislature and was elected senator from Massachusetts for six years from March 4 next.

"My own feeling is that the Legislature should receive the first congratulation that it so wisely chose Mr. Lodge to be his own successor, and secondly the state of Massachusetts should be congratulated in that she has retained the services of this brilliant man.

"I believe the time has come when a constitutional provision should be passed providing for the direct election of United States senators by the people.

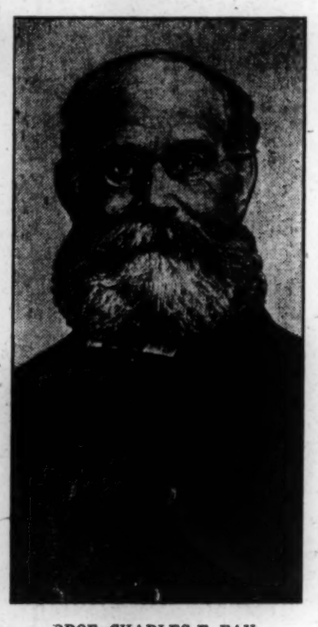
"The Legislature, in its last session passed a resolve that public good required a change in the present system of determining the compensation of employees for injuries sustained in industrial accidents, and a commission was appointed to study the subject. That commission now asks another year to investigate. It seems to me the subject is too important to permit of further delay in enactment.

"Another subject of great moment to the welfare of employers and employees is a continued effort to further establish the principles of arbitration of labor disputes."

Mayor Fitzgerald said a few words in praise of the Democratic candidate, Sherman L. Whipple. Other speakers were Amos H. Whipple and the Rev. Dr. W. H. Ryder.

The dinner was complimentary to Capt. R. S. Harrison of the Revere house, who was presented with a large silver loving cup by O. D. T. Baker, president of the club, in behalf of the members.

Tufts Instructor Who Has Made Many Trips to the Canadian Rockies



PROF. CHARLES E. FAY.

Prof. Charles E. NEW CUNARDER IS SOON TO ENTER BOSTON SERVICE

CUNARD STEAMSHIP COMPANY'S NEW LINER FRANCONIA.

The new steamer of the Cunard line, Franconia, is receiving her furnishings at Liverpool, and according to present plans, should be ready for the transatlantic service in a few weeks.

The new vessel has a carrying capacity of 6000 tons of coal, while the Saxonia carries only 2000 tons. The public rooms on the deck have been arranged like those of the Lusitania and the Mauretania.

The staterooms of the second cabin are all amidships. The dining tables very in size to seat from four to eight. The refrigerator accommodations are said to be ahead of the average, separate compartments being provided for the various kinds of meats and fruits. The Franconia is the first of the Cunard line to be equipped with a gymnasium.

The length of the steamer over all is 625 feet, breadth 72 feet and depth from the top of her deck houses to keel, 90 feet. Her masts are 200 feet above the keel, while her funnels tower 140 feet above the lowest furnace bars. The Franconia is of 18,000 gross tonnage and 25,000 tons displacement.

She will be the largest vessel to enter Boston narbor and is scheduled to arrive about the last of April, for she sails on her first trip to Liverpool from Boston May 2.

Every modern improvement has been installed in the steamer. There is a great ballroom at the disposal of the passengers; there is a garden tea room with all sorts of potted plants and flowers therein; the staterooms are larger and more comfortable than the average, and they have hot and cold running water in them; and last but by no means least in the minds of travelers there are no upper berths.

The Franconia will sail from Liverpool to New York on Feb. 25. On March 11 she will leave New York for Naples and a cruise in the Mediterranean, and immediately on her return she will be put into service between Boston and Liverpool.

IN THE REALMS OF MUSIC

"BARBER OF SEVILLE."

Tito Ricordi's coming to Boston seems to have given new vigor to the stage directing energies of the opera house. Never have the artists of the opera company been so attentive to their individual parts in the drama and so little mindful of applause as now. At "The Girl of the Golden West" performance of Tuesday night, every singer seemed bent on evoking by tone and action a picture of perfectly coordinated detail; and in the "Barber of Seville" presentation on Wednesday night, a like aim was apparent. Here was a Tavecchia projecting on the canvas a delightful portrait of Don Bartolo, and here was a Mardones exhibiting a vocal style that must enlarge the reputation of Boston opera artistry, all because leading soprano and tenor were willing to control their impersonations to a general effect. And best of all in the play of Wednesday night, Hamlet was not left out. Figaro's part could well have had a more flexible vocal execution brought to it, but in point of vocal power and color it was adaquately read by Mr. Polese; and in point of comedy technique, too, it was tastefully interpreted.

Now if Mr. Ricordi, by his temporary association with the company and by his supervision of one of the season's productions, has had anything to do with the good results that have been accomplished this week, the opera directors ought to invite him to stay in Boston for the rest of the winter and oversee the presentation of other pieces that his publishing house controls.

Rosina	Lydia Lipkowska
Berta	Anne Roberts
Conte Almaviva	Florencio Constantino
Figaro	Giovanni Polese
Dottore Bartolo	Luigi Tavecchia
Basilio	Jose Mardones
Fiorello	Attilio Pulcini
L'Ufficiale	Ernesto Giaccone

LEHMANN RECITAL.

Mme. Liza Lehmann gave a recital of her compositions in Jordan hall, Wednesday afternoon, with the assistance of her quartet: Miss Blanche Tomlin, soprano; Miss Palgrave-Turner, contralto; Hubert Eisdell, tenor, and Julien Henry, baritone. The program consisted of the following selections: "The Golden Threshold" (an Indian song garland); two seal songs from Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book;" two love songs: "There's a Bird Beneath Your Window;" "If I Were a Bird I Would Sing All Day;" "Incident of the French Camp;" "Pearl and Song;" "Everybody's Secret;" Four Cautionary Tales and a Moral: Rebecca, Jim, Matilda, Henry King, Charles Augustus Fortescue.

Mme. Lehmann's facile pen excels in writing vocal music of the atmospheric sort on the one hand, and in narrating incidents or describing situations of grotesque humor on the other. Her atmospheric pieces are chiefly of East Indian scene, her humorous pieces for the most part take us into the realm of child fancy. The general feeling of her music is always remarkably in keeping with her subjects; she only falls short of great art and declares herself a minor poet in the technical detail of declamation. Mme. Lehmann conceives her music, as music, admirably; but the problem of adjusting the accents of her vocal line to those of the poetry, she is inclined to ignore. She writes a smooth vocal phrase always, but it is about the same for a bass voice as for a soprano; she makes sparing use of involved or rich harmonies. Her tendency is to compel the four elements of her quartet to a level expression. This comes, doubtless, from the peculiar emotional requirements of her subjects. She has spent her days trying to throw her musical net over oriental and nursery conceits; and in the natural course of events she has learned how the game is most successfully pursued.

The songs were all exquisitely performed at the Boston recital, and they were enjoyed all the more by the audience because in Jordan hall details of facial expression and of tone shading have a fair chance to be effective.

ALASKA HALIBUT PRICE HIGH.

SEATTLE, Wash.—A cargo of halibut brought from southeastern Alaska by the steamship Cottage City was sold here at 10½ cents a pound, which is said by fish brokers to be the highest price ever paid for halibut on the Pacific coast. The Cottage City's cargo consisted of 100 boxes, each containing 600 pounds of halibut.

MIXED SENTIMENT IS REFLECTED IN PRICE MOVEMENTS

Much Irregularity Characterizes Progress of Trading in Wall Street—United Fruit Makes Good Advance.

LONDON IS ERRATIC

Price fluctuations at the opening and during the early sales of the New York market today clearly reflected the mixed sentiment following the rather good advance stocks have enjoyed recently. There was a wavering, irregular tendency throughout the list indicating that many traders thought a reaction of some proportions was due, while others, more optimistic, considered that a bull market was in progress and continued to buy stocks. The result of this condition was a very erratic movement. The opening prices were fractionally under the closing of last night. During the early sales still lower prices for some stocks were established, while good advances were made by others. Southern Pacific was strong.

A similar condition obtained on the local market. The strong feature was United Fruit which jumped 2 points during the first 15 minutes. American Telephone & Telegraph also was in demand.

The advance made by some of the active issues was not of long duration. A good sized selling movement was under way before midday and stocks lost their early gains. Around noon the general list was under the opening figures. A conspicuous exception was Lehigh Valley, which opened unchanged at 179 and advanced 2½ points. It lost over a point around midday.

Reading opened off ⅛ at 157¾, sold up to 158⅜ and then declined under 157. Union Pacific opened up ⅛ at 176¾ and after improving a small fraction declined over a point. Norfolk & Western, which had a good advance recently, opened unchanged at 107 and lost nearly 2 points during the first half of the session.

Southern Pacific opened unchanged at 118, advanced a point during the early sales and then declined under the opening figure. Great Northern Ore opened up ½ at 59, advanced to 60 and dropped back a point. Amalgamated Copper at 83⅞ was off ½ at the opening. It rose to 64¼ and declined nearly a point before midday. Canadian Pacific opened up ⅛ at 208¾, improved to 209 and dropped 1½ toward noon.

United Fruit on the local exchang opened unchanged at 190, rose to 192½ and sagged off a good fraction. American Telephone & Telegraph opened off ¼ at 143¾, advanced above 144 and then sold off fractionally. Massachusetts Gas opened up ⅜ at 92⅛ and advanced over a point. The preferred also showed improvement. A sagging tendency was noted in the coppers.

A break of 2 points to 10¾ in Utah Consolidated was a feature of the local market in the afternoon trading. The New York market was steady and dull.

In the late trading a substantial improvement took place in the New York market.

LONDON—The stock exchange markets finished irregular. Domestic issues were heavy notwithstanding the favorable bark of England statement. Failure of the banks governors to reduce the discount rate as had been expected is set down to the expectation of large shipments of gold to India.

American railway shares, which had been steady in the official session, disclose mixed final changes on the curb. The narrowing speculation also was indicated in weakness in oils, mines and foreign securities. At 69⅜ Rio Tintos were ⅞ net lower. The continental bourses closed quiet.

RHODE ISLAND COAL.

The Rhode Island Coal Company has concluded arrangements with Scranton contractors who do similar work in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania to drive upward of 3000 feet of tunnels in different directions to open the mine for operations. It is expected that the contractors will be on the ground with their machinery and men within a very few days. The output now runs about 200 tons a day.

CONSIDER CURRENCY REFORM MEASURE IN TRADE CONVENTION

WASHINGTON—Currency reform is one of the principal subjects at the closing session today of the convention of the National oBard of Trade.

Resolutions by the business men's monetary conference, presented by delegates from the Chamber of Commerce of New York, the Merchants Association of New York and the New York produce exchange, have been proposed for further action.

These resolutions in general follow the Aldrich plan. State banks, however, are included within membership of the proposed central organization.

The resolutions favor "a central banking organization" on the following principles:

"First—A corporation endowed with a large stock capital, not merely an association of banks.

"Second—Capital to be owned by incorporated banking institutions, whether under national or state charter, willing to assume equal duties as a basis for equal privileges.

"Third — Administration divided between the government, the member banks and the commercial classes, in a manner which will safeguard against individual, sectional or political combination.

"Fourth—Its business limited to transactions with the government and member banks.

"Fifth—Dividends limited to a fixed moderate return and profits in excess, after providing for reasonable surplus and emergency fund, turned over to the government.

"Sixth—Its business to be conducted through branches, in banking districts into which the country shall be divided, member banks of the districts constituting joint associations, and sharing in administration of the branches.

"Seventh—It shall, free of charge, receive and disburse all moneys of the government where it shall have offices.

"Eighth—It shall not allow interest on deposits.

"Ninth—It can issue circulating notes, payable in gold, buy and sell bullion and deal in foreign bills of exchange, rediscount commercial paper only for member banks, discount approved American bank acceptances and buy and sell the bonds and treasury notes of the United States.

"Tenth—It is ultimately to become the sole note-issuing power."

WHY THEY OPPOSE LOWER PRICES

NEW YORK — The Iron Age says: The position of the steel manufacturers is that prices for their products have already been sufficiently readjusted and should not go lower, except as there is a general reduction in commodities and labor. They contend, further, that cutting prices at this time would not increase business.

New domestic rail orders are light, but there are several good inquiries.

The reflection in the market here of strong conditions abroad is a factor that will bear watching. British tinplates have advanced 6d. a box in two weeks and the placing of further export business with American mills is not unlikely. Canadian buying of tinplate in this country is also more active.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Germany's foreign trade in 1910 amounted to $2,049,985,000, a gain of $19,570,000 over the previous year.

Nearly $6,000,000 bonds were sold on the New York stock exchange Wednesday, double the volume of recent days.

THE COTTON MARKET.

NEW YORK—The cotton market opened steady, unchanged to 4 points lower: January, 14.60@14.61; February, 14.69@14.70; March 14.78@14.79; May, 15.01@15.02; July, 15.01@15.02; August, 14.70@14.71; September, 13.?2; October, 13.35@13.39; December, 13.22@13.25.

LIVERPOOL—Spot cotton, good business done; prices steady; sales estimated 10,000; receipts 32,000; American 31,900; American middling uplands 806; futures quiet and steady.

Bowen & Austin—Indications point to ginning figures to be published on Monday next of little more than 150,000 maximum as the amount ginned from Jan. 1 to the 16th. This would be slightly in excess of the ginning figures for same period last year. Needless to say such announcement by the government would be a very bullish argument.

BOND INVESTMENTS OF THE NATIONAL BANKS OF BOSTON

Holdings of the Local Institutions Have Not Been Largely Increased Within the Last Few Months.

NOT LARGE BUYERS

Although several of the large New York banks have added very substantially to their holdings of bonds during the last two or three months, the Boston national banks have added to their holdings only $2,700,000, which, however, represents an addition of 27 per cent. Total of bonds owned by the Boston banks at present is nevertheless only $12,304,000, as against $9,672,000 at the date of the Nov. 10 call of the comptroller, and $13,265,000 in June, 1909. The Shawmut is the only bank which has added substantially to its holdings since November. Its total of bonds held, exclusive of government securities, has been increased from $3,856,000 to $5,655,000. The First National holds $1,246,000 of bonds.

Boston banks have had little surplus money to invest in bonds in the last six months. In any case, however, Boston national banks have never been heavy bond buyers, either directly or through syndicate participation. It is of interest to note that under the national banking act there is no arbitrary legal limit to the amount of bonds a bank may hold. On the other hand, they are not allowed to purchase stocks for investment, and are only permitted to acquire stocks when taken in payment of dishonored debts.

As compared with security holdings of some of the big New York banks, the bond holdings of the Boston banks individually or in the aggregate are small. The National City Bank, which, of course, with deposits of $146,000,000, has nearly two thirds as great deposits as all Boston banks combined, holds $38,000,000 of bonds and securities, or thre times the amount of all the local banks. The First National in New York which with $84,000,000 deposits is not greatly in excess of the Shawmut, is however, the largest holder of securities among national banks in New York, with an aggregate of $46,000,000. The Chase National Bank holds $20,000,000 bonds and stocks.

The following shows security holdings of the Boston banks at various dates in the past two years: Jan. 7, 1911, $12,304,910; Nov. 10, 110, $9,672,933; Sept. 1, 1910, $9,798,000; June 23, 1909, $13,265,000.

OPERATIONS OF ADAMS EXPRESS

NEW YORK—In September and quarter ended Sept. 30, 1910, Adams Express Company's operations resulted in considerable increase in gross earnings, but decrease in net. It is difficult to assign any specific reason for the increase in operating expenses, which conduced to that result, but in both periods they advanced more than 10 per cent, compared with corresponding periods of 1909.

Capital stock of Adams Express Company consists of 120,000 shares of nominal par value of $100 cash. Bonds outstanding amount to $26,000,000, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum. These bonds were issued to shareholders in the form of special dividends.

Total operating revenues—that in the amount remaining from gross earnings after deduction of express privilege debit—were $1,379,325 in September last, compared with $1,274,366 in September, 1909. Operating income was $215,503, against $236,393. For the quarter total operating revenues were $3,815,826, compared with $3,525,461, and operating income was $374,203, against $422,608.

BIG YEAR FOR COAL INDUSTRY

Notwithstanding several factors adverse to large production of coal and to prosperity of operators and big carriers, the year 1910 with the possible exception of 1907, was the largest in point of production and tonnage carried by the coal roads in the country's history.

The greatest factor influencing the industry was the prolonged strike in Illinois and the southwestern states which was not settled until Sept. 15. Altogether the period of idleness in the mines affected was fully six months. The settlement was a practical surrender by operators to demands of the miners granting an increase of 5.55 per cent in wages.

Production of soft coal likewise suffered some five weeks of idleness in all the bituminous mines operated under union auspices. As the normal output of bituminous coal is approximately 1,000,000 tons per day, this item represented a decrease of some 30,000,000 tons.

In an unsatisfactory industrial year, the coal trade seems to have been one of the few that showed a consistent gain.

AMERICAN WOOLEN YEAR SAID TO BE SUCCESSFUL ONE

Company Earns Seven Per Cent on Preferred With Good Margin—A Good Business Is Now Enjoyed.

Although the American Woolen Company has not yet completed its inventory for last year, it is practically assured that the company earned its 7 per cent dividends with a snug margin. In fact, it was evident early in the year, because of the excellent business done during the first six months, that the company would have no difficulty in earning its full dividend requirements, and although the second six months were not so prosperous as the first six, the twelve month as a whole was a successful period.

At the present time the company is experiencing a very good business, several large orders having been taken recently, and the plants are being kept running at a fair capacity. The indications are that the year 1911 will be a more prosperous one than 1910. It is not expected, owing to the great variety of the company's goods, that the year's figures will be completed until some time in February.

At the close of the 1909 year the American Woolen Company had an inventory of nearly $19,000,000, and when it is mentioned that the inventory at the close of 1901 was only $12,440,000 an idea may be had of the growth of the business. Net sales for 1909 amounted to $48,000,000, or $13,000,000 larger than for the year 1901. The company has a surplus of over $10,500,000 and has always paid the full 7 per cent on the preferred stock—showing average earnings of 10 per cent on the issue since organization. Selling at 93 the preferred yields about 7.4 per cent on investment.

HEAVY WHEAT SUPPLIES AT SOME POINTS

Large Amounts of Winter Variety at Kansas City, Toledo, St. Louis and Other Points in the West.

CHICAGO—Kansas City, Toledo and other points report heavy wheat supplies. St. Louis reports more than 1,500,000 bushels of red winter wheat with little demand. Kansas City has 500,000 bushels of soft winter wheat besides a record supply of hard winter wheat. A Toledo milling concern reports enough on hand to keep it running until the next crop and wheat being delivered to its mills at Fostoria at 4 cents under Chicago May wheat price. Ohio farmers holdings are estimated at 35 per cent to 40 per cent of the crop.

It is different in the spring wheat country, of course. A leading Minneapolis commission house says one third of the 4500 country elevators in Minnesota and the Dakotas will be closed by Jan. 15. North Dakota is practically cleaned out, the bulk of the wheat being in southern Minnesota, where farmers are rich and can hold back for a couple of years. Best authorities in the Northwest insist that the government overestimated the crop there. Milling business is quite disappointing in the Southwest as well as in the Northwest.

Current estimates of corn sold to arrive here or hedged in the pit for May delivery the past two weeks range from 6,000,000 to 12,000,000 bushels.

The Daily Trade Bulletin estimates primary wheat receipts from July 1 to Jan. 1 at 158,000,000 bushels, compared with 175,000,000 bushels a year ago, and exports of wheat and flour 37,000,000 bushels, compared with 62,000,000 bushels a year ago.

EDISON ELECTRIC FAVORABLE RECORD LAST SIX MONTHS

Net Earnings for Half Year Increase More Than Sixteen Per Cent and Gross Over Eleven Per Cent.

ESTIMATE FOR YEAR

In the six months ended Dec. 31 last the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston made a favorable record. Gross earnings for the period increased 11.11 per cent, and net increased 16.38 per cent. In actual figures the gain in gross was $248,581, of which $197,515, or 79.45 per cent, was saved for net. In other words, $248,581 more business was done with an increase in operating expenses of only $51,066.

The statement of earnings for December last is an illustration of the consistent growth of the company. The increase in gross for the month amounted tao $37,215, which represented a gain of 7.37 per cent, as compared with a year ago, while operating expenses were held at a low level, increasing only 1.24 per cent. The result was that net earnings increased $34,723, or 11.46 per cent. The operating ratio of $37.77 per cent was about 3 per cent less than in the previous month and approximately 14 per cent below that of last August.

The following table shows the expansion in gross and net earnings, as well as the decline in operating ratios:

	Gross earnings.	Oper. expenses.	Net earnings.	% op. ratio.
July	$332,593	$155,316	$177,277	46.69
August	326,441	169,573	156,868	51.94
September	371,949	170,944	201,005	45.95
October	427,636	183,855	243,781	42.99
November	485,156	197,909	287,247	40.79
December	543,463	204,928	337,535	37.77

In May, 1910, the quarterly dividend rate was increased from 2½ to 3 per cent, and the extra dividend of 1 per cent, which had been paid in August of previous years, was discontinued. The fiscal year 1911, therefore, will be the first full year in which the stock will receive the regular 12 per cent dividends. On June 30 last the total outstanding stock was $15,543,600, on which amount dividends at 12 per cent annually would total $1,865,232. This sum is only about $500,000 less than gross earnings for 1903, which shows how the company has grown in the last seven years.

It is evident that if the next six months prove as satisfactory as the first half of the current fiscal year, gross earnings for the full year will exceed $5,000,000 and be the best in the company's history. With careful attention paid to operating expenses there should be a large gain in net earnings, and notwithstanding the increased dividend requirements, the company will probably close the year with a comfortable balance after all charges.

BANK OF ENGLAND STATEMENT.

LONDON—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes compared with last week:

Total reserve increased	£2,244,068
Circulation decreased	483,074
Bullion increased	1,762,046
Other securities decreased	662,059
Other deposits decreased	200,023
Public deposits increased	1,292,040
Government securities decreased	444,089

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liabilities is 51.20 per cent, against 47.80 per cent last week, and compares with an advance from 47½ to 50¾ per cent in this week last year.

The checks cleared through the London banks for the week aggregate £393,250,000, compared with £309,529,000 last year.

CANAL RECEIPTS FOR PAST YEAR PROVE HIGHEST YET KNOWN

Large Increase in Number of Vessels Passing Through the Suez — Average of Transit Is Reduced.

RATES TO BE LOWER

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—The report of the British vice-consul at Port Said, just published, refers to the increased traffic through the Suez canal, and shows that during the past year 4239 vessels of a net tonnage of 15,407,527 passed through the canal as compared with 3795 vessels of 13,663,283 tons in 1908.

The receipts for last year were the highest yet obtained since the canal has been opened; they amounted to f.120,642,677 as against f.108,452,235 in 1908. The mean net tonnage has risen from 1000 in 1871 to 2000 in 1890 and to 3635 in 1909.

The average time of transit for a mail steamer is 15 hours and for a cargo boat 18 hours. In 1909 the average for all vessels was 17 hours 13 minutes and 97 per cent of the ships were navigated by night as well as by day.

The number of British ships last year was 60 per cent and in net tonnage 62 per cent, an increase on 1908. The German percentage is 14 and 15 respectively, and the Netherlands comes third, with 5.9 and 5.2.

The original tariff for laden ships was f.10 per ton in 1869. In 1906 it was f.7 75c., and there will be a further reduction to f.7 25c. shortly. For ships in ballast the tariff has always been f.2½ less. The f.10 rate per head for passengers has never been changed.

In the course of a brief account of the creation and development of the canal, Mr. Dunlop says the Khedive's shares were purchased by the British government in 1875 for £4,076,622 and are now worth about £34,000,000, and bring in an annual revenue of over £1,000,000. The navigable dimensions in 1909 were practically double what they were in 1869. The original depth was 8 meters, and the original bottom width 22 meters. The minimum depth is now 9½ meters, and the bottom width 30 meters.

INCREASE MADE IN BRITISH REVENUE SHORT OF ESTIMATE

Large Sum Must Be Raised by Last Day of March to Meet Chancellor's Advance Calculations.

DESIRES £61,850,368

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—According to the returns made by the treasury for the period from April 1 to Dec. 31, that is, the first nine months of the current financial year, the total receipts were £137,940,632, which shows an increase of £43,645,085 for the corresponding period of 1909-10. Mr. Lloyd-George stated in the House of Commons in June last year that he estimated that the total revenue of the financial year ending March 31 next would amount to nearly £200,000,000, and this estimate included £30,046,000 of arrears from 1909-10.

The revenue realized in 1909-10 amounted to £131,696,456; Mr. Lloyd-George further estimated that there would be an increase of £68,094,544 in the current year. According to the returns for the first nine months of the present financial year, mentioned above, there has been an increase during the first three quarters of the financial year of £43,645,085. The increase is shown as follows:

	Receipts.	Increase.
Customs	£24,867,000	£2,512,000
Excise	30,845,000	6,975,000
Estate, etc., duties	18,540,000	2,262,000
Stamps	7,007,000	1,126,000
Land tax	620,000	570,000
House duty	1,670,000	1,350,000
Prop. and income tax.	34,048,000	26,818,000
Land value duties	210,000	210,000
Postal service	13,065,000	745,000
Telegraph service	2,435,000	45,000
Telephone service	1,420,000	160,000
Crown lands	350,000	.....
Suez canal shares and sundry loans	727,833	75,033
Miscellaneous	2,045,799	797,052
Totals	£137,940,632	£43,645,035

There remains therefore a sum of £61,850,368 to be raised before the present financial year expires on the last day of March, if Mr. Lloyd-George's expectations are to be realized.

CHARING CROSS RAILWAY STATION MAY BE MOVED

Propose to Erect New Buildings on Opposite Side of the Thames to Accommodate Traveling Public.

OBSTACLES ARE FEW

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—The enormous improvements which have been made in London in recent years seem only to have whetted the popular appetite for schemes of this nature, as fresh ones are constantly being brought forward and received with approval. The latest proposal is to remove Charing Cross railway station to the opposite side of the Thames; to substitute for the existing railway bridge a road bridge of handsome design, which might constitute a suitable memorial to King Edward VII.; to construct an imposing retaining wall along the Surrey side of the river between Westminster and Blackfriars bridges, having a promenade with gardens behind it; and to lay out afresh and rebuild the block of land, bounded by Blackfriars road and Westminster Bridge road on the south and east and by the Thames on the north and west.

Though this scheme sounds somewhat ambitious, it is pointed out that the obstacles in the way of its realization are less formidable than might be supposed. The district to be dealt with on the Surrey side, in Lambeth, is mostly covered by rather old buildings of a poor class, and the land is in comparatively few hands, rendering negotiations easier. Moreover, since the amalgamation of the South Eastern and Chatham railways into one company, the removal of Charing Cross station has been considered as a piece of railway policy, and is believed only to have been abandoned on account of the cost. Besides, the present site of the station is restricted and cannot very well be enlarged.

CHARING CROSS RAILWAY BRIDGE.

Which it is proposed to remove, in order that a memorial to King Edward VII. may be built.

The railway company obtained their act of Parliament in 1861, and the existing bridge was completed in 1863, at a total cost of £180,000 ($900,000), the engineer being Sir John Hawshaw. It consists of six spans of 154 feet over the river, and three of 100 feet upon the Middlesex bank, the girders of these latter spans being splayed out in fan-shape towards the station, so as to afford additional space for sidings.

Owing to the increase of traffic, it became necessary to lay additional tracks on the railway, and an act to sanction this having been obtained in 1882, the bridge was duplicated upon one side; at the same time the girders of the original portion were strengthened, to enable them to withstand the increased stresses set up by the use of heavier modern rolling stock. There is a much used footway, carried upon cantilevers outside the girders, on the northern side of the bridge.

Should the present proposals mature and take practical shape, there will be few people to lament the disappearance of Charing Cross bridge from what is really one of the most beautiful landscapes in London. It is hardly a handsome structure, and from an engineering point of view is not above criticism. No doubt its designer was somewhat hampered by the arduous conditions to be complied with, and by the necessity for making use of the piers of the old Hungerford suspension bridge which formerly spanned the river at this point.

RETAINING WALL

Build New Bridge of Handsome Design, Which Will Constitute a Memorial to King Edward VII.

BIG CRANES WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO THE MIRAFLORES LOCKS

PEDRO MIGUEL, C. Z.—Work has progressed so far on the locks here that two berm cranes and four chamber cranes are to be dismantled and re-erected at the Miraflores locks, and the cost of moving them—which is to be done by contract—will be $80,532. About 2000 tons of steel are to be dismantled and 2100 tons erected, the contract price being about $19 a ton.

The work will be begun early in March and the contractors, who are the McClintick-Marshall Company of Pittsburg, Pa., agree to have the cranes reerected in three months. The firm has the contract for building and erecting the lock gates, and the removing of the cranes will be carried on in connection with the gate work. The difference of 100 tons in the amount of steel to be dismantled here and the amount to be erected at Miraflores is accounted for by the fact that certain cranes are partly erected at the latter point.

The cantilever cranes at Pedro Miguel consist of two berm cranes, erected in the south forebay of the locks, which convey materials from storage piles and mix them into concrete, and deliver the concrete into cars; and four cantilever cranes in the lock site which lift the buckets of concrete from the cars and deliver the material at the points desired. The contractor will dismantle all structural parts and machinery, including concrete mixers, load them on the cars and unload and reerect at Miraflores, placing all machinery in its proper position, without allowing the performance of this work to interfere with the erection of the lock gates.

SIR HENRY TANNER DESCRIBES NEW GENERAL POSTOFFICE

During Eighty-One-Year Period the Staff Grew From Eight Hundred to Twenty Thousand—All Records Broken During Recent Christmas Rush.

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—A paper descriptive of the new general postoffice was read recently by Sir Henry Tanner, by whom it was designed, before the Royal Institute of British Architects. Sir Henry Tanner said that after the removal of the provincial mails and the parcels post work to Mt. Pleasant in 1900, the old general postoffice was occupied by the controller of the London postal service and his staff for the collection and delivery of letters and newspapers in the city district, and for the despatch of foreign and colonial mails. The removal to Mt. Pleasant relieved the building of 2850 men, leaving 2150 only in the building, but there were at the date of removal to King Edward's building 3750 men of all ranks, including 1400 postmen. In the meantime the force at Mt. Pleasant had increased from 2850 to 4550, these numbers being exclusive of the temporary force employed at Christmas. Altogether about 12,500,000 letters, weighing 366 tons, were dealt with in a week. In consequence of the immense growth of the work, the old building, which in 1829 was sufficient to accommodate all branches, had had to be abandoned and seven large buildings provided to meet present-day requirements, while an eighth was under consideration. During this period of 81 years the staff had grown from 800 to 20,000.

Sir Henry Tanner then gave some interesting statistics of the Christmas traffic, showing that all records had been surpassed in the new King Edward's building. He also spoke of the construction and the size of the new postoffice, which, he said, exceeded that of New York by some 90,000 superficial feet. The floor area was 467,000 square feet, while the old postoffice had but 158,000 feet. So far as was known, the new building was the largest letter-sorting office in the world.

CANADA'S LONGEST ELECTRIC RAILWAY GOOD INVESTMENT

(Special to The Monitor.)

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The gratifying announcement was made at a meeting of the shareholders of the British Columbia Electric Railway Company, held in London, Eng., that the new line recently completed between New Westminster and Chilliwack, a distance of 65 miles, was already paying 5 per cent on the $2,000,000 expended in constructing and equipping the road.

When the company decided to build the road some three years ago it was not expected that more than operating expenses would be earned for years to come, running as it does through a partly unsettled country, and the report of the first three months of its operation comes as a pleasant surprise to all concerned.

This new line is the longest electric railway in Canada, and promises to become an important factor in developing the rich valley of the Fraser river, through which it runs.

The immense power plant of the company at Powell river, Vancouver island, is nearing completion, when an immediate start will probably be made on the proposed extensions at Victoria, and in the neighborhood of Vancouver and New Westminster. The capital stock of the company has been increased by $3,500,000.

CHEMICAL MIXTURE MAY REVOLUTIONIZE ALL LINEN INDUSTRY

(Special to The Monitor.)

AMSTERDAM—Dr. Elias Stark, a resident of The Hague, has recently invented a chemical mixture which it is believed will revolutionize the linen industry. While the secret of the invention is not yet made public, pending the registration of the patent in various countries, it is learned that the invention will in some manner or other make it possible to manufacture or weave linen in much less time than formerly, at the same time adding strength to the textile.

Dr. Stark is more or less of a genius, being at once a painter of more or less modern fame, the author of a book on Dutch East Indies, Egypt and Palestine, and a chemist by profession. For years he lectured at the University of Leiden, practised chemistry, in the meantime lecturing, writing and painting, his latest line being an invention along industrial lines. The invention will be patented in the United States, England, Belgium, Germany and France.

WEARING OLD ROBES WILL BE NEW DEPARTURE

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—It is rumored that the King and Queen propose to wear at their coronation the robes that were made for King Edward and Queen Alexandra, which have been carefully preserved in the tower of London ever since. If the rumor prove correct, it would be almost a new departure for sovereigns to appear in their predecessors' robes, as nearly every new ruler has had new coronation robes manufactured for the occasion. The relics of former ceremonies do not seem to have met with very kindly treatment at the hands of posterity, some of them having been destroyed by a parliamentary commission in 1649, while others have suffered from being lent for theatricals. When the famous wardrobe of George IV., "who spent £10,000 a year for the coats on his back," was sold in 1831, many of the garments made for his coronation were included among the items. These were sold for next to nothing, and went to adorn the figures at Madame Tussaud's exhibition.

INCREASE IN FOREIGN TRADE.

(Special to The Monitor.)

TOKIO—The foreign trade of Japan shows an increase of £11,000,000 when compared with the figures for 1908. The exports for 1910 from Japan are valued at £45,666,666 and the imports at £46,500,000.

NEGOTIATIONS TO RESTRICT OPIUM TRAFFIC ARE RESUMED

(Special to The Monitor.)

CALCUTTA—The first three years of the agreement with respect to the restrictions of the importations from India into China have now expired, and since this period was to be considered as experimental the question has now been reopened.

The question of the suppression of the opium habit has received considerable attention at the hands of the governments of Great Britain, India and China for some time past, and when the initial steps were taken by the Chinese government the British government agreed to restrict the amount of opium imported from India into China in the same proportion that the amount of opium produced in China itself was reduced. It was therefore agreed that the importation of Indian opium into China should entirely cease in 10 years time. The communique was published by the Indian government on the last day of 1910, containing a statement to the effect that it is the intention of the government to adhere strictly to the agreement to reduce the exports and imports of opium by 5100 chests yearly. In future certificates will also be issued for all opium leaving India under declaration for China, that is 36,600 chests. The question of closing the treaty ports to uncertificated opium is also raised. The high prices at present levied in China which have attracted increased imports have necessitated the issue of these certificates.

The arrangements originally proposed by the British government would, if they had been carried out, have insured the cessation of trade at the end of seven years, after which time no opium would have entered China from India. In the meantime the cultivation of the poppy in China is by no means as sufficiently checked as should be the case, and it will be interesting to note the outcome of the negotiations which have just been resumed.

EARLY STRUGGLES OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY RECALLED

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—The year 1910 witnessed the development and fulfilment of several achievements which have been the objects of man's pursuit for countless years. It is interesting therefore to look back and recall the early struggles of the first body that was ever called together to form an institution for experimental philosophy, the Royal Society, which was established in England at the time of the restoration. The researches and experiments of this little coterie of enthusiastic philosophers met with the most bitter opposition from the masses who claimed to have discovered in them desperate conspirators against the freedom of the nation and even of the Christian faith.

While a large body of people opposed and scoffed at every invention such as the telescope and microscope which were denounced as atheistic inventions which perverted sight and made everything appar in a false light, others went to the opposite extreme and were impatient for miracles and demanded immediate fulfilment of every discovery as soon as it was merely hinted at.

During the past year, which has witnessed the discovery of the north pole, the crossing of the channel by flight, and the practicability of wireless telegraphy, it is highly interesting to read the following extract by Glanwill, a contemporary writer of enlightened views, who took up his pen to defend the members of the Royal Society.

"Should these heroes go on," he wrote, "as they have happily begun, they will fill the world with wonders; and posterity will find many things that are now but rumors, verified into practical realities. It may be, some ages hence, a voyage to the southern unknown tracts, yea possibly the moon, will not be more strange than one to America. To them that come after us, it may be as ordinary to buy a pair of wings to fly into remotest regions as now a pair of boots to ride a journey. And to confer at the distance of the Indies, by sympathetic conveyances, may be as usual to future times, as to us in a literary correspondence—and the turning of the now comparative world into a paradise may not improbably be expected from agriculture."

GERMAN SHIPS IN PEACE PACT

BERLIN—Regarding the rumors of the termination of the Cunard Steamship Company monopoly of the Hungarian emigration business and of the traffic-sharing agreement of that company with the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines, officials of the Hamburg-American said on Wednesday that there would be no antagonism between the Cunard people and the Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd, Holland-Amerika, Red Star and French lines because of the license which the five latter companies have received from the Hungarian government.

This license will permit them to operate from the northern ports which are placed on the same status as Fiume. The matter of equalizing the traffic between these two companies and the Cunard line will give no trouble, the statement adds.

COAL OUTPUT HAS GOOD INCREASE

(Special to The Monitor.)

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa—There is a satisfactory increase in the total output of the colony of Natal for October, as compared with the total coal output of the corresponding month of the previous year. In October, 1910, the output was 186,588 tons, the output for October, 1909, being 151,044 tons. The future prospects for the collieries are considered to be decidedly good, and it is believed that the increase shown above has been maintained.

WINNIPEG CLAIMS 204,000.

WINNIPEG, Man.—The city directory for 1911 just issued estimates the population of this city to be 204,000. The number of names in the directory is over 71,000.

SEE FIRST STEP TOWARD HOME RULE IN IRELAND

DUBLIN—The Independent said on Wednesday that the government would appoint a commission to investigate Irish finances with a view to establishing home rule and moved to appoint a committee of the cabinet to frame a home rule measure.

Lord Courtney of Penrith has written to Thomas Sexton, chairman of Freeman's Journal Company, saying that the time has come to recognize the facts of the matter and prepare for home rule.

John E. Redmond, who was reelected president of the United Irish League; T. P. O'Connor, Joseph Devlin and Daniel Boyle, the Irish members of Parliament who visited the United States in the interest of home rule, were the guests of honor at a banquet at the Mansion house, arranged as a compliment for the success of their American mission.

In his speech Mr. Redmond said that the veto power of the House of Lords would be abolished before the coronation, without the creation of new peers. He said that so long as the Liberals abided by their pledges on the veto and the home rule questions, the Irish party would support them, without regard to any minor issues, but, he added, the smallest deviation would mean instant change in the party's attitude.

LIBRARIAN ACCEPTS.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—R. W. Douglas has accepted the appointment of librarian recently tendered him by the board of the Carnegie library of this city.

MULAI HAFID HAS FULLY RATIFIED NEW AGREEMENT

MADRID—A telegram has been received by the government from the Spanish minister at Tangiers, announcing that he had received information to the effect that Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of Morocco, had fully ratified the agreement concluded between Spain and that country last November. By this agreement, to which reference has already been made in these columns, the outstanding differences between Spain and Morocco are settled. The agreement has not yet been actually signed, but it is understood that El Mokri, the Moroccan envoy, and Senor Caballero, the Spanish ambassador in Paris, will both sign the document in the French capital.

WATER SHORTAGE AT SANTIAGO, CUBA

HAVANA—In a message to Congress on Wednesday President Gomez recommends the immediate appropriation of $2,000,000 for a Santiago aqueduct.

The electric plants have been shut down on account of the water shortage. The city is in darkness, street cars have been stopped, no newspapers are being printed and business generally is at a standstill.

Two steamers, carrying 350,000 gallons of water from Guantanamo are hastening to Santiago.

INTERNATIONAL IRON SYNDICATE MAY BE FORMED

(Special to The Monitor.)

LONDON—A report has been published by the Frankfurter Zeitung to the effect that efforts are being made to form an international iron syndicate, and that a meeting of leading American and European representatives has been held. It is further reported that endeavors are being made to induce the important producers in each country to send representatives to attend the meeting in Brussels some time during the coming spring, the object of which will be to appoint a committee to devise some arrangement for dealing with the present competitive state of affairs.

REVENUE INCREASED.

MELBOURNE, Victoria—The revenue of the Australian commonwealth for the last six months is as follows: Custom and excise £6,461,000, showing an increase of £681,000; postoffice £1,923,000, showing an increase of £128,000.

VICTORIA WILL BE ADVERTISED IN GREAT BRITAIN

(Special to The Monitor.)

MELBOURNE, Victoria—The visit paid by the Hon. Hugh Mackenzie, minister of lands, and Dr. Elwood Mead, chairman of the water commission, to Great Britain and the United States, has already been described in these columns, indeed, an interview especially granted by Mr. Billis, secretary of the land settlement delegation from Victoria to a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, was published in full in the issue of Nov. 21 last. As a result of this visit the delegates have decided to strongly advise the government to advertise Victoria in Great Britain. Mr. Mackenzie and Dr. Mead have both formed strong opinions as the result of their recent visit as to the importance of advertising in order to attract the class of settlers so much needed by the state.

WOMAN GETS SEAT IN THE STORTHING

CHRISTIANIA—The Storthing is about to experience the novelty of a woman representing one of the Christiania seats.

General Brattlie, president of the Storthing, has been obliged to retire from his seat temporarily in order to assist in the work of reorganizing the army. His substitute, Miss Rogstad, a public school teacher, will enter the Storthing this session.

TURKEY TO END YEMEN REVOLT.

CONSTANTINOPLE — The Turkish government has resolved to suppress the rebellion that has flourished for several years in Yemen, a region of southwestern Arabia, and will despatch 30 fully equipped battalions to that district. The embarkation of troops began on Wednesday.

GERMANY'S FOREIGN TRADE.

BERLIN—A report on the year's foreign trade just issued shows imports amounting to $2,049,980,000, a gain of $19,570,000; exports $1,778,000,000, a gain of $207,800,000. These figures exclude gold and silver.

MUSIC AND THE MANY

Fashion and friendliness make the Boston opera foyers a gay sight.

WHILE the Boston opera house presents no such brilliant show of fashion as makes the Metropolitan audience quite as interesting as the stage to the average beholder, yet there is enough of a novel blossoming forth into one's very best to strike the attention of one who has known only the Boston audiences of the Symphony concert. Round about the circling foyers of the various levels saunters the brilliant crowd. The men mostly wear their hats, often set at the raking angle which makes a top hat the sign supreme of gentility gone to seed. It is a curious fad of etiquette that a man may wear his hat in perfectly secluded and shielded halls like these, with ladies at his side, and yet in an elevator will most often feel like standing bareheaded if ladies enter. There is really no excuse for the hat in the opera foyer, except that it is a nuisance to carry it. The women walk in their low cut gowns of filmy stuffs without wraps. Why should the man protect himself from imaginary cold? Just because—just as fashion's behest.

But the gowns of the ladies excite the most interest especially those gowns which enable the wearer barely to toddle. Truly they are charming, with a far more natural grace than clothing which makes the human figure something quite unlike itself. The little rags and tags of fur accenting certain points of the costume, the long floating, slithery diaphanous coverings which soften the silken robe beneath, make the changing throng look as if the stuffs of the mantua maker had all gone suddenly off on their own errands, free to do what they would with themselves, without heed to measuring rod or the inexorable shears. The costuming of the hour, however bizarre it may appear after the years of conventionality intimated in the words "basque and a full skirt," is certainly more normal and simple in line and as such more truly artistic. And then the pretty shoes! Gilt slippers, and blue and red and silver, high heeled to the last pitch.

But this Boston crowd is a source of especial interest to the stranger from its heterogeneity. Here are handsome dames of unmistakable family in priceless laces and others in gowns of a few seasons back, elaborate in detail, but hopelessly commonplace amid all this lilting chiffon and flaccid satin. Here are pretty debutantes with rosebuds in their hair no sweeter than they. Here is a distinguished gentleman at the door of the cafe, leaning in detached contemplation of the throng while his womankind gossip at his elbow. Here are prim Boston women in high necked afternoon gowns of sober silk or cashmere, their Sunday best, donned for the great occasion of the year, a box at the opera. Here are the exotic women of the stage itself, with the prevailing fashions expressed a l'outrance (to the limit, one may say) and with sculptured coiffures. Jewels flash, eager eyes are quite as brilliant, a hum of chaff and laughter blends the various persons and various social orders represented here into a pleasant solidarity which is strange enough in formal Boston town. Yes, the coming of the opera is to teach us many a lesson.

It was Mr. Lang, Boston's own musical leader, who said that to have the symphony in its most perfect expression while no opera was here showed how much more intellectual than musical the city was. Now that the freedom and the happy irresponsibilities of operatic music are poured out upon the Boston atmosphere the cold conventionality of yore may expect to melt away. Nobody listens to the opera with a severe purpose of analysis. Fancy at the opera any attempt at a program book such as has so long been the fetich of Symphony hall! People go to the opera to have a good time, to be among friends, to feel themselves enwrapped in the pleasantness and harmony of music, light and color; not to delve at an austere task. And for this all the music which Boston shall produce hereafter will be freer and broader and more truly musical. For music is a happy art and it is or should be always the voice of spontaneous joyfulness. But this is a story by itself.

In a Canadian Country

The few weeks preceding winter are perhaps the most beautiful of the whole year. The mosquito is gone. The heaviest of the work is over, and, as though nature knew that her husbandmen had time to enjoy them, one perfect day succeeds another. The gentle frosts at night serve but to give a cleaner vitality to the long mellow days and to bring out more clearly the wonderful coloring of every tree and bush. The prairie stretches out in long vistas of purple, gold, and crimson where asters, Michaelmas daisies, golden-rod, and the low-growing rose berries cover the unbroken land. In the bluffs the maples, hickories, and poplars flame in scarlet, yellow, and silvery lemon, and the glories of the earth repeat the wide-stretching glories of the sky.—London Times Supplement.

English people are very fond of tomatoes, for which they pay from 5 to 10 cents a pound on the London market. England used about $1,000,000 worth of tomatoes grown in Canary islands last year.—Chicago Journal.

GRAVER'S WORK

AFTER an absence in Europe of nearly a generation, Timothy Cole has returned to his native land to continue his life-work on American soil. During his sojourn across the seas he has engraved on wood for the pages of the Century Magazine nearly 300 masterpieces of European galleries, and thus has placed to his credit a distinction enjoyed by no other master of the graver in our generation. Half-tone work is now so common, and holds the field so exclusively, that the present generation is unaware of the artistic loss the world has suffered by the invention of photography. In many respects, of course, the camera has been a real boon to civilization, and its value for records is beyond dispute, but the fact that it has nearly destroyed the art of engraving on wood seriously discounts all photography's advantages. What we have lost is pertinently illustrated by the work of Mr. Cole, who has clung so faithfully to the old medium and is its ablest living exponent. Year by year he has triumphantly shown how, in competent hands, the graver and the boxwood surface are fully equal to the severest task which can be imposed upon an artist who would translate into monotone the most subtle effects of color. His Corot pictures are an example; in their silvery effects they give the very atmosphere of those poetic originals. And even when he takes a photographic portrait, such as that of Thomas Carlyle, he produces a result which transforms the original into a work of art.—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE HOLY LAND

Phillips Brooks' first sight of Bethany and the Mount of Olives.

IN a letter to his father in 1865 Phillips Brooks says: Christmas morning we rode up to town and went to service. It rained all that day and we stayed in the house. The next morning we were off for our trip to the Jordan. Passing out of St. Stephens Gate, we rode past Gethsemane and around the southern slope of the Mount of Olives, the same road by which Christ made his triumphal entry from Bethany. The point at which he must have first come into view of the city, with the multitude throwing branches under his feet, is very clearly seen and very interesting. Passing around the hill, in about an hour we came to a little village in the fold of a valley, as quiet and out-of-the-way place as one can imagine. This is Bethany, a poor little town now. They show still the tomb of Lazarus—a cave, deep and dark and tomblike. All the afternoon we rode on over the hills.

Toward night we came out into the great plain of Jordan, wide, green and beautiful. We crossed the "Brook Cherith" of Elijah and the ravens, and went to the site of old Jericho, where is the fountain which Elisha changed from bitter to sweet. Then across the plains to the site of the later Jericho, which Christ entered. This is the old Gilgal.

They showed us the house of Zaccheus. We camped here, and after dinner the Bedouin women came and danced their wild dances and sang their wild songs and got their bakshish. Next morning we rode down the plain to the river, the Jordan! We came to it just "over against Jericho," where the Israelites may have crossed, and just where tradition says that John preached and Jesus was baptized.

Whoever lives true life will love true love.—Mrs. Browning.

Out of the strain of the doing,
Into the peace of the done:
Out of the thirst of pursuing,
Into the rapture of won;
Out of gray mist into brightness,
Out of pale dusk into dawn—
Out of all wrong into rightness . . .
Into eternity's harvest Home.

THE AIM OF PRAYER

TO pray aright one must first abjure all thoughts of limitation in regard to God, such as thinking of Him as humanly circumscribed, as limited to time and space, as partial, variable, or as unwilling or unable to help us. Neither must we allow any thoughts of anger or vengeance in connection with God to rob prayer of the loving, trustful attitude necessary to get results. We must clear our thoughts of these untrue ideas of God and think of Him as good only, as all-knowing Love, as omnipotent Truth and omnipresent Principle. The right idea of God fixed firmly in thought we have met the first requirement for effectual prayer. Next we should get a clear idea of ourselves and our relation to God. The Bible tells us that God made man in His image and likeness. If man is the likeness of God he must be a spiritual being, and as a spiritual being he cannot in reality suffer from material conditions, as sickness, heat, cold, weariness, although to mortal sense mankind may seem to do so. At our present stage of progress certain material things are necessary to our well-being, but we should not pervert the true aim of prayer by trying to use it for selfish purposes. Praying to God as Spirit and Mind for spiritual blessings, the heart's cry for love and happiness is satisfied and incidentally the material needs are supplied. This does not mean that we cannot turn to God for help even in what seem to be the most trivial affairs of life. Christian Scientists make a most practical use of prayer and there is no irreverence in this. It shows rather that they realize that it is not a material but a mental condition that they have to meet. It shows, too, their absolute faith and trust in God and their willingness to have Him guide them every step of the way.

We need not outline the answer to our prayers. To set our hearts on particular plans and then affirm that they will be carried out successfully is letting human will into our prayer. Our attitude should be that of willing obedience and trust, knowing that the Father-Mother God will give us all good. We will always find, when we pray humbly and sincerely, "Thy will be done," that the blessings which God sends us are far richer than those we would have specified, and we will be filled with joy and gratitude at receiving a reward so much greater than we would have believed to be deserved. Yet there are certain things that we have a right to pray for specifically, and we need have no fear but that they are in accord with God's will. They are health, holiness, freedom, love, joy, peace and all the fruits of the Spirit.

Nor are we to pray only in emergencies. Mortals sometimes turn to God only when they can no longer find pleasure or help in lesser things, and then forget Him again as soon as they are out of trouble. If we analyze the motive for this it will be found to be ingratitude and irreverence. We would be ashamed to accord such treatment to human beings, letting them care for us and supply our needs, and then to forget them. To friends who plan for our pleasure and comfort we turn many times with grateful love. We tell them of our appreciation and try to think of how we may in turn please them. Should not our attitude toward the Giver of all good be far more grateful and reverent? Should we not turn our faces heavenward many times a day with loving appreciation of His goodness, and strive earnestly to do the things that would please Him? If we realized what a privilege it is to have God for a friend we would think about Him continually. The thought of God can be an undercurrent in our minds even when we are busy about other things. On page 4 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the textbook of Christian Science, we read: "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds," and farther on, page 15, "Self-forgetfulness, purity, and affection are constant prayers." What a beautiful ideal of prayer this is! These are prayers we can all begin to pray, prayers of which the sincerity and practicability cannot be doubted.

We see from this that prayer is not merely petition. Petition is the smallest part of prayer. One of the beautiful hymns in the Christian Science hymnal brings out the idea of the true use of prayer:

"May pray'r now lift her sacred wings,
Contented with that aim alone
Which bears her to the King of kings,
And rests her at His shelt'ring throne."

True prayer is the desire to get better acquainted with God, to grow more loving, more kind, more forgiving, to realize man's likeness to the perfect Creator. When prayer has this aim it will become to us the sweetest part of our lives.

How Ted Saved the Day

THERE was a little boy who used to live opposite to the big fire house where the engine was kept and the hook and ladder and the splendid horses that knew just what to do when the alarm rang. The little boy's name was Ted, and during the long hours when the firemen have nothing to do but sit and wait, the little lad got to be very well acquainted, not only with the men, but with their horses. All the horses knew Ted, too, and would prick up their ears and look around kindly when they heard his voice.

There was one horse named Pete who had a bad reputation for balking at unexpected moments. He was otherwise a good horse, could gallop very fast indeed, and was gentle and intelligent. This horse was a favorite with all the firemen, and though the chief often threatened to have him sent away he was persuaded to give him one more chance.

One day the fire gong sounded and just as the chief came out with the hook and ladder wagon, the man who worked around the place for Ted's father rushed out and said, "It is our store; just telephoned. I'll go with you." But no sooner had he swung into place beside the chief than the wagon stopped still. Old Pete had balked at the slight interruption and would not take another step. In vain they all tried leading, coaxing, the whip and the urging voice. Old Pete stood firm in his tracks. The chief was about to give up in despair and ring another engine to the fire when suddenly he saw Ted near the horse.

"Get away, Ted," he shouted, "you'll get stepped on." But Ted paid no heed. Patting Pete's nose softly, he said in his usual voice, "Go ahead, Pete! Nice old boy! Aren't you 'shamed; get up there." And sure enough the sulky animal started off as suddenly as he had stopped and away went the wagon to the fire. Pete really seemed to be making up for lost time, and the men reached the fire in time to use the ladder with good effect.—This story is told in Little Folks Magazine.

A Poet and a Painter

Great poets have often very pretty ideas about the ways of children interwoven with their poems. Robert Browning's poem about the great Italian painter, Lippo Lippi, touches on the pranks he used to play as a boy, for over his tasks his talent for drawing used to crop out in spite of himself. The poet makes him say:

"I drew men's faces on my copy-books,
Scrawled them within the antiphonary's marge,
Joined legs and arms to the long music-notes,
Found eyes and nose and chin for A's and B's."

Where Mr. Taft Could Be Found

When President Taft was on his campaigning tour in the West, before he had been elected President, he stopped at the home of an old friend. It was a small house, not well built, and as he walked about in his room the unsubstantial little house fairly shook with his tread. When he got into bed that receptacle, unused to so much weight, gave way, precipitating Mr. Taft to the floor.

His friend hurried to his door.

"What's the matter, Bill?"

"Oh, I'm all right, I guess," Mr. Taft called out to his friend good-naturedly; "but say, Joe, if you don't find me here in the morning look in the cellar."—Ladies Home Journal.

A Royal Madcap

NOW in his twenty-ninth year, the German crown prince has not inherited the sturdy physique of his family. "Blond, tall and slight, he does not give the impression of being skilful in the saddle, with the gun, the oar, the racquet or even with the gloves." Yet in all these strenuous pursuits he has acquired a mastery, thanks to what in England is called pluck. "Six or eight years ago, before the responsibilities of fatherhood began to sober him, the prince was the most celebrated hurdle jumper in the army." One of his famous pranks was the riding of his squadron of mounted cuirassier guards up the terraced steps of the palace at Potsdam.

"The Emperor ordered the youth under arrest for this impetuous piece of bravado, and similar punishment was meted out a year later when the Emperor heard that the prince had won a dangerous steeplechase at Karlshorst." Risk and adventure made an appeal thus early to the daring spirit of the young Hohenzollern. "He did not ask his father's consent to fly with Orville Wright at Potsdam. This brought on another domestic crisis in the palace which was not smoothed away without the intervention of the Empress herself." His majesty is said then and there to have asserted that the character of the crown prince has been hopelessly spoiled by his mother.—Current Literature.

Matches and Masterpieces

News comes from Paris that M. Cochery, the minister of finance, is planning to start out on a campaign of art education for the people by supplying for the ornamentation of match boxes prints of the famous pictures of the Paris and other galleries. The idea is that tourists, too, will be interested in the little artistic souvenirs of the country and will buy more matches than they need in order to complete their collection of the tiny reproductions of masterpieces.

Now the question rises, will the matches on entering the port of New York be taxed as kindling wood or as old masters?

His Blushing Honors

A recognition of J. Pierpont Morgan's services to art and research has been made by Dr. Kunz, the gem expert, which will do more to perpetuate the financier's name, perhaps, than any of his personal exploits in the arena of the mighty dollar. A new variety of pink beryl has been named "morganite" and one may imagine the reflected blush of modest pride with which the king of America, as contemporaries name him, will receive this latest tribute to his fame. Dr. Kunz will himself be remembered as having given his name to kunzite, an amethystine stone. This naming of a semi-precious stone would seem to make more for remembrance even than Rosemary or the Lawson pink. From Boston to Blucher boots men's names have been perpetuated in the things of the earth, and while pink beryl is a prettier name than morganite one does not grudge Mr. Morgan his distinction, which as a contemporary remarks should from its rarity please him more than an LL.D. or any Italian royal decoration.

All the past is shut up within us and is a sort of perpetual present. All the future is before us, and though duty is a present thing it is constructed out of the past and runs endlessly into the future. We thus have the past with its memories, the present with its duties, and the future with its anticipations—one for wisdom, one for action and one for hope.—T. Munger.

Prophecy

FROM east and west, from north and south,
Together men shall throng;
And praises sound from every mouth
For Love shall give them song.

Before His face shall go the light,
And men with opened eyes
Shall see the knowledge hid from sight
As Love shall make them wise.

The perfect bond shall be inwrought,
With all their hearts, till sin
Shall vanish as the hostile thought
Is gone when men are kin.

Then all the holy and the just
That ever earth has known,
Shall see the triumph of their trust.
When Love ascends the throne.
—Heartsease Hymns.

Etchings by the Yard

Some gay chat, strung together on the theme of the modern department store, in the Saturday Evening Post, contains this amusing incident. The writer is supposed to be gathering materials for writing advertisements from the various heads of departments. She asks the gentleman in charge of the art goods what he is offering.

"Well," he grudged at last, "you might mention a new lot of Venices and sheep I just got in from the other side."

Prepared as I was by passing glimpses of the pictures, I hardly expected such a sweeping division of art. I was even more surprised when, knitting his opera-bouffe eyebrows and rising from his chair, he pondered: "Come to think of it, I believe I'll give you something else to advertise—some etchings I got today; unusually large for the money."

"Unusually large for the money!" Was the man joking? I had not quite decided when I saw him pick up a yardstick; and, after he had slowly made his way to a mound of pictures, I watched him solemnly measure the frames.

"Thirty-two by 15," he announced to my companion's dictation. "All in handsome gilt frames—just a little lot from an importer who was afraid he couldn't dispose of them and so gave them to us at a concession."

A Man of Experience

A somewhat fussy lady had asked the conductor for a transfer. "You'll be sure to tell me when we come to my transfer station, won't you, conductor?" she asked, sweetly.

"Yes'm," said the conductor, wearily.

The next time he passed through the car the lady, remembering the ways of conductors, said to him again:

"You won't let me go past my transfer station, will you, conductor? You'll be sure to tell me when I get there, won't you?"

The conductor sighed and looked at her gently and sadly. "I won't have to tell you, lady," he said. "I won't have to tell you, 'cause you'll ask me every time we come to a transfer station if that's where you get off!"—Youths Companion.

Whom call we gay? That honor has been long
The boast of mere pretenders to the name.
The innocent are gay—the lark is gay,
That dries his feathers saturate with dew
Beneath the rosy cloud, while yet the beams
Of Day-spring overshot his humble nest.
—Cowper.

Let us concede that the greatest need of the church today is the conviction that the most effective religious force is in simple, sincere, consistent every-day living. Let us also remember that the greatest factor in the Christian life of today is in "unconscious influence," the silent power that is always exerted by genuine character. The secret of sincerity, consistency and "unconscious influence" is in self-forgetting devotion to the Truth; faith in Truth, love for Truth, obedience to Truth. And this to the Christian believer means: devotion to Christ, faith in Christ, love for Christ, obedience to Christ.—John H. Vincent in Chautauquan.

The Aldrich Plan

SENATOR NELSON W. ALDRICH of Rhode Island, as chairman of the national monetary commission, submitted to that body on Tuesday his long-looked-for scheme for the revision of national banking legislation especially with a view to the solution of the currency problem. It is only reasonable to assume that this plan embodies to a large degree the views of his associates on the commission. It might not be going too far to say that it embodies the views of leaders in the financial and commercial world with whom it is known Mr. Aldrich has been in close communication of late. Whatever else may be thought or said of it, it may be taken for granted that it is offered as the result of a careful study of the monetary situation in this country, its peculiar needs, and the numerous and various proposals that have been offered with the hope of meeting them.

The trend of opinion has been decidedly against the proposition. While the idea of a central bank has appealed to many as being, perhaps, the best means of determining the currency needs of the country under varying industrial and commercial conditions, and while it has had weight with many as, possibly, the most effective safeguard against repetition of the experience of 1907, yet there has invariably been a pause at the point of indorsing a proposal that would place such tremendous power in the hands of an administration at Washington.

Some of the most earnest and enthusiastic friends of centralization and the new nationalism have hesitated to give sanction to so far-reaching a measure. Many of the leading financiers who were expected to give it hearty support declined to indorse it. It became clearer and clearer as the debate proceeded that neither of the great political parties would be willing to shoulder the responsibility of it. If Senator Aldrich ever entertained the thought of making the central bank a part of his monetary reform plan he abandoned it.

What he offers by way of substitute is certain to challenge quite as much discussion and to arouse quite as much opposition as the original bank scheme. The senator proposes a national association of bankers and business men which shall have a capital of $300,000,000, with branch associations, government representation on the board; each branch board to include a certain number of men not bankers. The President would have power to remove governors and deputy governors. The organization would not be controlled "by ambitious monetary interests or dominated by political influence."

There would be close restrictions, but out of even this plan, in the thought of the ordinary man, arises still the framework of a central bank.

MASSACHUSETTS can rest easy about one thing, at all events; Senator Lodge may not always take a course it believes to be right, but he is pretty certain to take a course he believes to be right. Next to having a man agree with you, the best thing is to have him disagree with you honestly.

THE English language is very peculiar, as everybody knows, as, for instance, in the matter of the meaning of the simple little word aims where it is spelled in a different way.

Jamaican Enterprise

WITH an experience not dissimilar to that of San Francisco or Baltimore, Kingston, Jamaica, is giving proof of what energetic effort may accomplish toward municipal rehabilitation. There may be less ground for hurry in the West Indies than in the United States. The tropics, perhaps, call for less exertion; consequently, greater leisure may enter even the domain of building construction. But the Kingston of 1911 is already so much superior to the Jamaican capital of the year of the earthquake that returning tourists from the island are loud in their praise for what has been accomplished.

Jamaicans are loyal to the mother country. It requires only a short stay in the island to see that Great Britain holds first place in the estimate of the people. But Jamaica is not alone a locality where romance and enjoyment nestle in luxurious tropical environments; Jamaicans are a progressive business people. In this respect the island has a tradition of which it may well be proud. The fertility of the soil brought riches to the surface many years ago, and many plantations and many ships gave wealth to the inhabitants. Then came a period of stagnation. Next entered the American. He saw his opportunity and invested his money. Again Jamaica became prosperous. For this reason Jamaicans see in the United States both a neighbor and a friend. The business relations between the island and this country are of the closest.

If reciprocity arrangements must be made between the island and other sections, Jamaica does not wish to enter into any agreement detrimental to the trade with the United States. There has been much talk of late as to reciprocity with Canada. Jamaicans, apparently, do not take kindly to the idea. The suggestion has been advanced that granting of a subsidy for faster steamship communications might prove advantageous. This may be a good thing for both Canada and the island, but it is not the intention of the people of Jamaica to increase their business with anybody at the expense of the United States.

In pursuing their present course the Jamaicans are perhaps following along the lines of least resistance. The island is profiting greatly from tourist travel, and most of the visitors come from the United States. The future of the West Indies, however, is not made secure by building solely on what visitors net the inhabitants. The products of the islands, especially of Jamaica, are the real sources of revenue. Money comes in return for what is sent to market.

Development of Jamaica with American capital has been the means not only of an increased productivity but also of an increased demand for American goods. Renewed plantation activity called for great quantities of machinery. Proximity of the United States caused a preference for American building material, and in the reconstruction of Kingston American steel mills have shared considerably. Then, too, foodstuffs not indigenous to the island are required in much larger quantities with the advent of the tourist crowds. Here, again, the United States has of late had the preference.

It is not strange that Great Britain should wish to bring all its West Indian colonies into a closer bond with the mother country and the Dominion of Canada. But with Americans developing the larger part of the island, it would seem hardly reasonable to have Jamaican enterprise hampered by measures that would operate against broad commercial relations with the United States.

The "Treating" Habit

WITHOUT doubt gradually mounting sentiment against waste will take more cognizance eventually of the so-called "treating" habit, for the practise is intimately associated with the past and present high cost of living. It does not appear, from a logical point of view, why either men or women should feel called to bestow invariably upon every friend they meet at random some token of esteem in the form of carfare, a meal at a restaurant, a trip to the theater or to the lecture. On the other hand, that is a privilege they may exercise to their heart's content and to which there can be no strong objection unless their outlay borders on extravagance. But, although no ordinance, statute or unwritten law prescribes that one man shall treat another, men bow unresistingly to the mandate of a hazily defined belief that nickel, dime, quarter or still greater tributes cannot be avoided without attracting derogatory opinions. To this larger class must appeal powerfully the example of those who rebel against the treating for which there is no warrant, steadfastly declining to distribute or to accept such favors.

Eliminating considerations of seeming policy or generosity from the prospect, what is there left to recommend treating as a habit? Even granting that it has some merits, they are few and far between. One does not have to cultivate frugality in order to see the unwisdom of permitting any continuous drain on the pocketbook from what experience teaches to be of little or no benefit in the long run to any one concerned. If two acquaintances happen to board the same car, perchance, why is it that each hastens to pay the fares of both? What is the reason that the one who is treated murmurs something about getting even next time? Can competition of this kind be reconciled with the fitness of things when neither of these friends boarded the car at the other's invitation? Is it not probable that many of the persons treated in this or similar ways would prefer to pay their own expenses, but refrain from making known that wish in order to give no offense? What if friends agreed to pay for their own meals, fares, theater and lecture tickets when going about together, and permitted no infractions of that rule? These points are worthy of entertainment.

There are fine distinctions in the matter of treating, questions of whether the treat is justified and acceptable or otherwise. Some instances of the lengths to which treating is carried are astonishing, to say the least. There is always the hazard of lurking unpleasantness if a treat be forced upon a friend or acquaintance, and when a man happens to meet a lady of his acquaintance on a street car and pays her fare gratuitously, is not his action in fact a piece of impertinence? How does the person who cannot afford to return a treat feel about accepting one? The host would seem to be the only one possessing the right to treat, the guest to be the only proper recipient of such courtesies. If extending a deliberate invitation were the only means of earning the right to treat, there would be less of the indiscriminate and offhand treating that forces obligations upon those who do not care to assume them or humiliates persons who find it impossible to return such favors. Popular opinion might deal with this matter so firmly that treating as a habit would be discouraged on the grounds of fair play, as well as propriety.

Removing Civic Incongruities

TO THOSE who were familiar with the surroundings of railroad stations and factories years ago, the gradual change to cleanlier conditions, more sightly arrangements and something like harmony of relation with their sites is impressive. Still, this broad field of improvement has by no means been covered; there are many instances where a touch would work wonders in the way of removing glaring incongruities. In fact, one has to look somewhat closely even now to find many places where corporations, or even merchants, put enough altruism into their buildings and grounds. Yet notice of an increasing tendency in that direction is refreshing. It sets new standards that finally are appreciated by property owners, merchants, employees and communities.

There is a distinguishing quality for the manufacturing city in neat, commodious buildings, set off by well-kept lawns, with stately trees here and there. Great importance attaches to the railroad station, the approaches to it and the structures nearby, stamped with industry or sloth, according to their material and size; this because a municipality's supposed features, displayed there for every traveler to read as he may, usually determine the municipal reputation for good looks, or their opposite. The ordinary observer has small opportunity to assign each portion its due; the hasty glimpse suffices. Who has not viewed with rising disapprobation evidences of inadvertency on the part of railroads, property owners or municipal governments after the abolishment of some grade crossings? And, again, who has failed to note the neglect of both factory structures and grounds in numerous industrial centers? Are we not all impressionists?

It behooves local governments to watch the work and plans of corporations whose activities come within the municipal domain, dealing fairly in all respects but requiring observance of regulations protecting the taxpayers. But local governments cannot in fairness overlook neglect on the part of individual citizens in matters whereof the outward show works against the best interests of the city. What any man does affects his brethren. It makes small difference whether the particular point is cleanliness, sightliness, harmony or utility. Neither the manufacturer, the railroad nor the citizen property-owner can properly avoid considering them. And the public is more and more the court that has jurisdiction in these matters.

WHAT the immigrant learns after he arrives is fully as much to be considered as what he hasn't learned before he comes. The best thing to do for him and with him is to see that when he reaches here he is at least given a chance to get into good company.

Art Standard for Washington

THAT Washington has a higher standard of art redounds somewhat to the credit of the Taft administration. That is the construction placed upon the acceptance of plans for three government buildings, because the members of the architectural board of award were unanimous in their decision. The new structures, costing $8,000,000, are the ones that will house the department of state, the department of justice and the department of commerce and labor, as announced some time ago. Since the fine arts commission was created in Washington by act of Congress, there has been no architectural project of such importance as this one. In the opinion of experts, it means the end of what is termed "freak art" in the capital city. For that alone, perhaps, Americans should be eminently thankful.

Those who know Washington have no misapprehensions regarding the mixed character of that city's architecture. It is time that some element of consistency were injected into a situation which, artistically, is somewhat confused. If the erection of three buildings of like appearance fairly starts the movement to make the capital more pleasing by subordinating a few of the glaring details to which visitors so often call attention, that is apparently enough to expect at first. Small beginnings frequently have momentous results.

Most interesting of the hopes based on this project is the one implied in Secretary MacVeagh's explanation that Washington has developed no individual type of architecture. He evidently expects that the three new buildings will exert a wide influence on the architecture of the country. Doubtless most patriotic Americans could express the same wish with equal fervor. The national capital naturally should furnish the other cities of the nation their object lessons in working out high standards. If Washington can influence cities to build more on the lines of beauty, continuity and permanency, the construction of these new homes for government departments will take on a significance for the country at large even more powerful than for Washington itself.

The Villa Savorelli

IN 1897 a group of Americans having at heart the welfare of American art, and with special reference to its culture in Rome, where many American artists, struggling and successful, known and unknown, were constantly to be found, determined to establish an American academy in that city which should be a center for them and, to some degree, a home. A charter was taken out in New York with this purpose in view, and among the incorporators were some of the best known painters and architects in the country.

Thanks to the energy of a few of the promoters, the academy has proved to be a great success. The King and Queen of Italy have distinguished it by visiting its exhibitions. Henry Walters of Baltimore headed a subscription in its behalf with a contribution of $100,000. William K. Vanderbilt, Henry L. Higginson, J. Pierpont Morgan and other well-known and well-to-do Americans have given to it liberally. Mr. Walters went even farther, and in 1905 purchased for its use the Villa Mirafiore. It has lately been announced that the academy has moved into a new home, a villa on the top of the Janiculum, which has interesting historic associations.

This building ranks as a palace in Rome, and was once occupied by Garibaldi. At that time it was known as the Villa Savorelli. Later it passed into the possession of Mrs. Clara Jessup Heyland, daughter of Augustus Du Pont Jessup of Philadelphia, who willed it to the American academy. Mrs. Heyland in the meantime had changed its name to the Villa Aurelia, from the adjoining Aurelian road leading from Rome to the Mediterranean.

The fact that the palace was once the residence of the great Italian patriot will give it additional interest in the eyes of all American visitors, but it is gratifying to learn that the academy is basing its claims to recognition upon its own merits exclusively. That it has thus far acquitted itself highly is best evidenced by the fact that it has made warm and generous friends among the best artists and foremost lovers of art in the country for which it stands as representative.

THERE have been a number of what are commonly called "close shaves" in recent senatorial elections, and it is, perhaps, only natural that under such circumstances some candidates are glad to win by a scratch.

Rough Play and Athletics

IT IS a mistaken belief that any considerable number of people in any community whose opinions are influential stand opposed to athletic games of any kind simply because they call for vigorous activity on the part of the players. There is no anti-football sentiment in the country, if what is meant is that the playing of football is objectionable because it may to the spectator seem rough. There is no sentiment in the country against any of the so-called manly sports. What is objected to is that sometimes the sport itself becomes secondary to the roughness that little by little obtains a foothold in, and finally dominates, some of the best of the athletic games.

It is in the interest of athletics that whenever the tendency toward roughness becomes too strong it shall be checked. No game among the popular games of our time is peculiarly adaptable to the methods of players who seem to derive more satisfaction from a display of strength than they do from a display of skill. All games have suffered from the misbehavior of certain players. A game of croquet can be made relatively as obnoxious as a game of football by the introduction into it of practises that have nothing in common with true recreation or sport.

When school teams, or college teams, or teams organized under any auspices, cannot meet in friendly contest, subject to the rules governing legitimate sport, the best service they can render athletics is to disband. Those who must assume responsibility for the conduct of school teams are acting entirely within their province, and entirely in accordance with public sentiment, when they interpose to prevent meetings that promise to bring disgrace rather than credit upon the pastimes of the day.
